U.S. Proof Set Production Shatters All Past Records

Author Herbert P. Ferguson, left, confers with artist J. Marcel Suid, as their book, "Collector's Guide To Standard United States Coins" is published this week. (See page two for related story.)

Employees Maintain Quality With New, Modern Equipment

New machinery, updating and conversion of other equipment and processes will send a record-breaking number of proof coins this year from the Philadelphia Mint, Dr. F. Leland Howard, assistant director of the Mint, said in Washington.

He estimated two and one-half million—perhaps three—will pour forth for 1961 before production grinds to a halt. He predicted 1962 production would be stepped up to a possible three and one-half million sets.

In 1960 1,149,291 sets were sold. Five new stamping presses in the proof coin section, new and separate melting and casting facilities for proof coins and a remodeled air-conditioned work room to minimize fingerprint and perspiration damage are included in the current program of improvements at the Mint.

New melting pots and ingot molds in the melting and casting operations for proof coins are designed to turn out a better ingot, and, in turn, better planchets, Dr. Howard explained.

Reject blanks are one of the plagues of the operation, the Mint executive pointed out.

White-gloved Mint employees now will work in ideal temperatures as they process the nation's most perfect coins. Rejects because of fingerprints, in spite of the white gloves, have been a common occurrence. The proper precautions to eliminate prints and perspiration damage have been difficult, especially during the heat of the summer.

Top production of proof coins was reached within the past three weeks with a turn-out of 75,000 sets per week, Dr. Howard said.

He praised Philadelphia Mint employees for maintaining the high quality of the coins in spite of the acceleration and the intricate processing by hand. Nearly half of the employees at the Philadelphia Mint were occupied in the proof coin section during the peak production period.

The better ingots, as Dr. Howard explained, will cut down rejects at the beginning of the process, and thus up production further. Air bubbles in ingots often do not show up until the stamping stage is reached (proof coins are struck twice).

The flaws appear under duress of pressure. As the piece is stamped the flow of metal into a die will reveal an inferior grain structure and produce a defective blank. These coins, of course are eliminated in the rigid inspection.

Each Mint employee is responsible for his own coins and works on them from the blank stage through the inspection. He selects his own blanks, strikes them, inspects and rejects.

Management can keep close check on many features of the Cleveland Speaker At A.N.S. Meeting

Mrs. R. Henry Norweb, of Cleveland, will present an illustrated address on "Arts and Problems of Coinage" at a meeting of the American Numismatic Society Saturday, November 18, at 3 p.m.

The public is invited to attend, Sawyer McA. Mosser, secretary of the Society, said. The Society is located at Broadway between 155th and 156th Streets in New York.

Eisenberg Gives Museum To Louisville Seminary

Official presentation of the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., by Jerome M. Eisenberg, New York numismatist, took place on Thursday, October 19, in the Alumni Memorial Chapel.

The Museum, which includes coins of great historical and research value, was established by the New York man in honor of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Eisenberg, residents of Miami Beach, Fla.

Jerome Eisenberg owns and operates the Royal Coin Co., 24 East 80th Street, New York City. His father owns the Sage Coin Co. 646 Lincoln Road Mall, Miami Beach.

The junior Eisenberg, known as an antiquarian of great knowledge, was joined in the founding of the museum by other generous friends and donors, notably by two New York business men, Harry Denberg and Lestre Wunderman.

The archaeological materials deposited in the museum are valuable not only for their intrinsic worth, but particularly as tools

Hans Schulman Forecasts Trends In Eight Divisions Of Numismatics

"The general foreign coin has reached its peak in my opinion and with German worries about war, there has been a clear break in prices in that country," said Hans Schulman, New York international dealer who has just returned home from two and one-half months of travel abroad.

This observation was made by the noted numismatist-dealer-writer as part of an eight-point series of conclusions he has reached upon his return to the United States.

Schulman comments on these eight areas: U. S., foreign gold, other foreign coins, medals, decorations and paper money, Canada, auctions and retail sales through stores.

He described Italy's market as rising without any signs of a stop; recently some top, over-priced coins have gone down a little, he observed.

"We say foreign silver and copper has reached its top with certain specific exceptions," Schulman summarized.

He said foreign gold coins are enjoying an unusual boom based on the fact that 12 to 15 collectors are fighting over the same material.

"These 12 to 15 collectors include all nationalities," Schulman said, "United States, German, Italian, French, Dutch, English, etc.; in fact, they are located in about 12 to 15 different countries."

"It is not logical," he continued, "that these collectors will all stop buying at the same time."

The boom in foreign gold coins will continue, even if here and there a break in prices is visible," Schulman predicted.

Canadian numismatics are "booming," according to the columnist. "Numismatics are too new to diminish in Canadian," he

Mosser New Counselor Of World Group

Sawyer McA. Mosser, secretary and executive director of the American Numismatic Society in New York City, was named one of four counselors of the International Numismatic Commission at its session in Rome September 16.

President of the organization is C. H. V. Sutherland, Oxford, England; vice president, Laura Breglia, Rome; secretary, Dietrich Schwarz, Zurich; assistant secretary, Walter Havernick, Hamburg; treasurer, Colin Martin, Lausanne.

Serving with Mosser as counselors are H. Enno van Gelder, La Haye, France; Eduard Holzmaier, Vienna, and Nils Ludvig Rasmussen, Stockholm.

Correspondence regarding the International Numismatic Commission may be addressed to its secretary, Professor Dietrich Schwarz, Landmuseum, Zurich, 23, Switzerland.

"There are too many collectors for the merchandise available," he said. He said some series may be temporarily weak, because of the lack of collectors in that area, but over-all the U. S. market is not in any way on the decline.

Schulman, in commenting upon medals, said he felt this facet of numismatics has long been neglected. He recalled that in the early 20's, historical medals sold well and high in Holland, Germany, and England, but now those markets are weak.

Renaissance medals do not bring their old price levels, either, said Schulman, but they are being collected again, he pointed out.

Fred Johnson Arrested In Hawaiian City

Fred Johnson, 45, Philadelphia, Pa., and Camden, N. J., coin dealer, who has been the subject of an all-points search since his disappearance last June 4, was arrested by the U.S. Marshal's office, Honolulu, Hawaii, on November 1.

He is being returned to Camden to face charges of defrauding coin collectors of approximately $16,000.

Johnson was placed in the Honolulu City and County Jail upon his arrest in lieu of $5,000 bail. Federal Judge Martin Pence issued a warrant of removal to New Jersey for Johnson.

The accused man first drew attention earlier this year when he attempted to sue two Camden banking firms because they would not supply him with large amounts of uncirculated coins. In dismissing the case, newspapers quoted the judge as saying Johnson's demand was "the most unreasonable" one he had ever heard of.

Following the court decision, Johnson said "an appeal is going in, no doubt about it!"

Shortly after making this statement, Johnson disappeared, along with an alleged $16,000 in checks, cash and money orders for coin orders which he never filled. Since that time postal inspectors have processed more than 42 complaints against him.

Assistant U.S. attorney Frank Ferry of Camden reported that the checks and money orders ranged from a few dollars to approximately $4,750 which was sent

Collectors' Guide On Newsstands

A green-and-white-and gold "Collectors Guide to Standard U. S. Coins," by Herbert P. Ferguson is appearing on the nation's newsstands—a 60 cent member of the Bantam Reference Library family.

J. Marcel Suid was the illustrator. Members of the Board of Advisors included Joseph Edelman, president of the new Jersey Stamp and Coin Dealers' Association, owner of the Fairlawn Stamp and Coin Co., Fairlawn, N.J.; D. Wayne Johnson, editor, Coin World, Sidney, Ohio.

(See Page 1 For Photograph)

Dr. Henry Fattel, collector, North Bergen, New Jersey, and Leonard T. Salmon, wholesale distributor of coin supplies, owner of the Leonard T. Salmon, Inc., East Orange, N.Y.

The reference book, designed for quick identification, value and price guide, contains up-to-date premium values of every U.S. coin ever minted, significant mint marks.

There are more than 250 illustrations, coin terminology, history and many other facets of the hobby.

"Emphasis was placed on simplicity in order that the novice as well as the experienced collector will have a reference book that is clear and easy to use," said Author Ferguson.

He has endeavored to answer the most frequently asked questions about coin collecting.

Police Shoot Suspect In Ray Robbery

The man believed to be responsible for the $45,000 coin robbery from Dealer Elmer Ray's home in Lima, Ohio, last May—Richard E. Mauch, 39—is lying in a Mason, Mich., City Hospital with a police bullet in his spine.

Mauch, a former Lima convict, is held in Michigan under a half million dollar bond for kidnapping.

Considered by Lima police officials as a "criminal genius," Mauch was a prime suspect in the Ray case by police and FBI investigators almost at the outset. They were attempting to locate him at the time of his apprehension in Michigan.

Mauch was also wanted in Lima for a $14,000 J. C. Penney Co. safe burglary there last month.

Ray was robbed May 21 while he was attending a Marion, Ohio, Coin, Stamp and Hobby Show.

Glass was removed from an attached garage door to provide entry; one coin, valued at $9,500 was hidden, but it was stolen by the thieves. Ray said between 700 and 800 pounds of coins were carried away.

Mauch was captured in Michigan after he shot a deputy sheriff twice. The deputy then shot Mauch twice. He is reported in serious condition.

The deputy, Philip Manville, was not injured as both of Mauch's bullets were deflected, one by Manville's badge and the other by his checkbook.

Sheriff's officers recovered an estimated $50,000 worth of loot. In addition to guns, dynamite and burglar tools the loot included a number of rare coin collections, jewelry and diamonds.

Ferguson, who has been interested in coin collecting for many years, began his study of the hobby with an accumulation of foreign coins gathered through the years.

"Later I graduated into the field of United States coins," Ferguson advised, "but was never able to obtain intelligent information as to values, rarity and the many other things that arise when one is collecting coins. Finally, after practically giving away some of my prize possessions to a dealer, I disposed of all the coins and gave up the hobby."

"Numerous years later, in 1956, I entered into a partnership business in the State of Colorado and my partner happened to be a serious coin collector who knew the ropes as the saying goes. On the strength of his knowledge, we were able to add a coin department to our little enterprise and so I was once again in the hobby of coin collecting."

For health reasons it became necessary for Ferguson to leave the mountain area and move to sea level. He sold out his half of the business to his partner and moved to Passaic, N. Y.

Being primarily a book dealer, he opened a book shop with coins and stamps as a side line and has enjoyed a nice business during the past four years.

"Being in daily contact with all types of persons who were interested in coins," Ferguson points out, "I soon learned that the general public is hungry for true knowledge about the coins so highly publicized in the press and on the radio. It seemed that the information available and the means of dispensing it to the general public was very inadequate and their questions were going unanswered."

The author reports that he then studied the situation and determined that many untrue rumors were circulating and the public was suffering a complete state of confusion, and was "unable to learn any of the true facts. One source would give a certain story while another would give a completely different angle to the same tale. In the meantime, the general public was crying for true facts."

In view of this condition, Ferguson began to accumulate a list of the most asked questions and the more common rumors that were being circulated. From this tiny spark sprang the idea of an inexpensive book about coin collecting.

Once begun, the task has taken well over a year to complete. Extensive research was needed. Many problems arose and were eliminated, one by one.

"The most serious problem," Ferguson recalls, "was the fact that the paperback publishers could not reproduce photographs on the type of paper commonly used for this type of book. The only solution was to locate an artist to do the job. For practical reasons, it was important that the artist be a coin collector or at least know something about the background of the older coins."

While discussing this problem with his friend, Marcel Suid, Ferguson learned that not only had Suid been a stamp and coin dealer in Europe, but he also was an artist and architect.

As a result of this discussion, Suid and Ferguson formed an artist-writer team and the new book was on its way. The two plan various future works in numerous fields, Ferguson reports.

They have just recently signed contracts with Bantam Books for the production of a book on the same type about stamp collecting. Ferguson reported that this book will be available sometime during the summer of 1962.

by a San Bernardino, Calif., dealer along with an order for 500 proof sets.

Ferry advised that the Maricopa Coin Syndicate, Inc., of Phoenix, Ariz., had sent Johnson a check for $4,445 for 70 bags of 1961 cents. This check, along with the one from San Bernardino, were among those missing when Johnson disappeared.

On September 27 a federal grand jury indicted the missing Johnson on the defrauding charges and a search was launched throughout the numismatic world.

Federal officers working closely with Camden police traced down every lead, and finally apprehended the wanted man in Honolulu.

Detective sergeant Harry Tracy of Camden, who has taken an active part in the search for Johnson, said that Johnson will be arraigned immediately upon his arrival in Camden.

Club Elects Ralph Willis

Ralph Willis, Jr., was elected president of the new Chillicothe, Mo., Coin Club at its organizational session, and was to officially preside at the first regular meeting, set for Thursday, November 16, at the Chamber of Commerce office, at 7:30 p.m.

One other officer was chosen at the same time, Robert L. Ashford being named secretary-treasurer, the two to serve through the organizational period or until a constitution is approved and charter memberships closed.

Any area collectors interested in joining the club were invited to attend the November 16 session. An unusual angle to membership, according to the officers, is that members of other clubs would become associate members of the Chillicothe group at a payment of 50 cents annual dues. Dues for local members are set at $2.50 per year.

Hallace Brassfield, treasurer of the Trenton, Mo., Coin Club, attended the organizational meeting and became the first associate member.

process through this individual charting, according to Dr. Howard, recording how many blanks are struck, how many are defective, what type of flaws occur, the reasons for them. This affords opportunity to study and recommend corrective measures.

"Air inclusion at the final blank stage is the biggest problem," the Mint executive said.

Dr. Howard said new coinage stamping presses, the forerunner of the future, are in the offing for the Philadelphia Mint with the first prototype to be installed in January, 1962. These presses have many modern press and feeding features and better type of mechanism.

There will be two installed at the beginning for observation, and then eventually the new type of presses will replace the present equipment.

Another innovation described by Dr. Howard is installation of new blank storage bins, to store blanks ahead of the presses in case there is a slow-down in the melting or rolling operation.

The storage bins will yield blanks to keep up production, even though something goes wrong ahead of the stamping operation.

A new strip annealing furnace to handle both strip and coil will create better quality work in this department, Dr. Howard said, as he described the operations in which strips and rolls have to be processed to reach the proper molecular structure.

The old equipment is inadequate to meet the modern methods and requirements, Dr. Howard said. Electric melting furnaces are also planned to increase melting capacity by at least 50 per cent. These units will be of the high frequency type.

"Equipment beyond the melting end is capable of doing more work," said Dr. Howard. The

Richardson Held For Jury On Altered Dime Charges

An examining trial was held at Ardmore, Okla., on Nov. 1 for R. L. Richardson, charged with larceny by fraud, which resulted in his being bound over for trial by the District Court at Ardmore on the charge. Richardson is alleged to be the person responsible for a large amount of altered date dimes recently passed in Oklahoma, Nebraska and Missouri.

Wilson F. Walters, executive secretary of the Retail Coin Dealers Association, Inc., in making this report on the Richardson case, said, "We have uncovered additional evidence against Richardson. Two witnesses who can identify him will be present at the trial."

The R.C.D.A. has also contacted Ed Gorelick of Omaha, who is a member of the association. Gorelick is the person who first reported and identified Richardson, Walters advised.

Walters, speaking for Elliott Cashdan, president of R.C.D.A., pointed out that James Payne, prosecuting attorney for Carter County, Okla., "has done a very splendid job and deserves recognition for enforcement of the law."

The Carter County criminal docket has already been set for the month of November, Walters advised, and it is doubtful if Richardson will be tried until the December term of the court.

"We at R.C.D.A. are going to stay with this case, and work closely with attorney Payne every step of the way," Walters pointed out.

The R.C.D.A. paid the cost of extradition to bring Richardson to Oklahoma from Nebraska, and has kept close watch on development of the case since that time.

for instructional purposes, the Louisville Seminary officials point out as they gratefully accept the gift.

The collection focuses especially on the period of the New Testament and early church history. Objects in the Museum in addition to the coins include lamps, ostraca, papyri, scarabs, pottery, funerary stelae, amulets, ivory and bone carvings, mummy tickets, as well as many other types of ancient art.

New acquisitions are being regularly received by the Museum through the generosity of friends and interested donors, the Seminary officials said. They also announced plans for a descriptive guide to the Museum.

A morning service with President Duke K. McCall giving the invocation and benediction, and Dr. W. F. Albright an address, "The Outlook for New Testament Archaeology," was followed by a luncheon.

In mid-afternoon there was an interpretive tour of the museum conducted by Jerome Eisenberg and Dr. Albright. There was informal discussion in the evening. Donor of the Museum is a director of the Royal Athena Galleries in New York City, and a distinguished patron of the American Numismatic Society.

He is a life member of the Egypt Exploration Society, the International Association for Iranian Art and Archaeology, the Archaeological Institute of America and the American Oriental Society.

He is the author of a popular work on Roman numismatics entitled, "A Guide To Roman Imperial Coins," and has written extensively on other phases of antiquarian studies.

Al Snyder, president of the City of Lakes Coin Club, La Porte, Ind., reported that a 72-lot auction was held during the October meeting of the club.

Schulman...

als are becoming increasingly popular in the United States," Schulman observed. "To what extent old medals will be collected I will not predict, but I believe this is the up and coming series."

He described the decoration and paper money field as a very limited one with very thin markets. "I do not expect these to pick up more."

Auctions which have been up on the numismatic barometer will continue for a few years to keep their present day importance, predicted Schulman, but he said on a long range forecast, auctions will diminish in popularity.

Retail store outlets, commented Schulman, is the great future in numismatics all over the world.

"All in all it is a hopeful picture," said the New Yorker. "With our U. S. economy a bit weak at present, it is gratifying to know that any depression will not affect our profession."

He said in the eastern world, numismatics are state-controlled and are subject to regulations, but prices for Polish coins, even in Communist Poland, are high, and collectors are paying these prices.

Gold coins cannot be traded in most eastern European people's democracies, Schulman explained. In Russia there are restrictions on numismatic tradings, he said, but predicted that in the near future numismatics would increase in interest and popularity in the iron curtain countries because restrictions will diminish.

At this moment, Spain is the only country in western Europe where trading in numismatic gold coins is forbidden, said Schulman. "This does not mean that you may not find many gold coins in jewelers' stores if the jeweler knows you," he explained.

He said a change may soon take place and it may be officially ruled that gold coins can be openly sold, bought and collected. Spain, as he explained, is a country with a great numismatic life and this change should be encouraged.

Dr. Lopes-Chaves, the writer of the first doubloon book, may be the person able to convince the Spanish government of this change, said Schulman. As a state's attorney of great influence and as a writer of an important book on numismatics, he is expected to succeed in laying the ground work for the change.

His doubloon book is selling all over the world and collectors do not want to wait until X. Calico's book is ready in a few months, according to Schulman.

Calico's book will deal with many more doubloons, including the Republican period, and it appears that collectors apparently choose to own both books, Schulman said.

A Good Impression For Eva B. Adams

What does the change in Mint Directors mean for coin collectors?

It means several things including the possibility . . . I'll repeat that . . . the possibility of resuming coinage of commemorative half dollars. It also means that collectors will have to make a good impression on the new Mint Director, Miss Eva B. Adams.

Dick Johnson Dr. F. Leland Howard will step out of the Mint Bureau to take the helm of the newly created Treasury bureau on gold and silver operations. He remains for the present Assistant Director, but will relinquish this when his new bureau demands his full attention.

It is a well known fact that Dr. Howard was the blockade for any new commemorative coinage. For the past 15 years new commemorative bills were proposed by Congressmen in every session of Congress.

These bills, however, must have the sanction of the Treasury Department. When sent to the Treasury, Dr. Howard, through the Mint Bureau, was able, in effect, to kill every one.

(The last two bills to get through were the Iowa and the Booker T. Washington in 1946, the latter ran for nine years and incorporated the Washington-Carver.)

As the years went by, Dr. Howard's impression of American coin collectors grew steadily worse. The Mint Bureau receives many letters a day from the public, asking all kinds of questions, demanding all kinds of actions, wanting all kinds of coins.

From these letters, hundreds a day—and often thousands a week—Dr. Howard drew his opinion of the people interest in coins.

The letter asked and demanded: Were there any copper cents struck in 1943? Why don't you strike the silver dollar any more? Why not put a P mintmark on proof coins?

Instances like the small date cent brought an avalanche of mail. And everybody had an idea for a new commemorative half dollar and wanted the Treasury's approval.

This is the first time in history when we have three women in top positions in the Mint Bureau: Miss Eva B. Adams as Director of the Mint, Mrs. Rae V. Biester as Superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint, and Mrs. Fern B. Miller, Superintendent of the Denver Mint.

It is necessary that coin collectors dress up in their Sunday best and act as gentlemen when calling on these ladies!

If you have a question on coins, you should first try asking at your local coin club, or write the American Numismatic Association. As national organization for all American coin collectors, the A.N.A. should provide this service for both members and non-members. If you know of someone planning to write the government, see if you can answer his question first, or direct him to the proper numismatic organization.

As for new coins, new laws, etc., here is where collectors should have one strong voice, instead of scattered voices. It is the duty of the A.N.A.—an organization chartered by Congress—to speak for the American coin collector. The A.N.A. has established a committee to work with the Treasury officials. Let them do their job.

But if you must write to the Mint Bureau, be sure you have exhausted the numismatic channels first. Let's make a good impression on Miss Adams!

Letters To The Editor

As a crusader for things numismatic, our club writes to you to ask that you lend your talents to help promote our proposal, to wit:

Being of the opinion that there is actually no such item as an uncirculated coin—it had to circulate to a degree to get into the collector's hand—the Greater Houston Coin Club proposes that we all seriously consider changing the term Uncirculated to a more self-descriptive term.

Admitting that we are influenced by the term used in England, we propose that the term Mint Condition—MC—be substituted for the now familiar UNC. This would tell the story. The coin labeled MC would indicate that it is in the same condition as when minted and bagged.

There would be no wear but there could well be scratches and weak strikes. If the coin is an MC coin plus being entirely free from any flaws and well struck then it is a Gem and should be so indicated. An MC coin in brilliant condition would be a BMC coin.

It is believed that such labeling to indicate condition would become a boon to mail order dealers and buyers. Every dealer has experienced having a coin returned that he advertised as UNC or even BU. And so it was, but the buyer really wanted a Gem coin and when the coin arrived and a tiny scratch was found he sends it back and misunderstanding resulted on both sides.

If you buy a flawless diamond you expect and will have to pay a premium price. A flawless coin is a Gem coin and no less a jewel than a flawless diamond. It cannot be bought for an UNC or BU price. Until we do something to clarify our nomenclature we can expect and will have unnecessary confusion.

I must take exception to the space filler having to do with the coinage of the Confederacy on page 26 of your October 6 issue. I make no pretention of expertness on this question, but there is general agreement, in the South, among collectors, that the two issues spoken of, i.e., the so called Confederate half dollar and cent, are at best a pattern issue for a coinage which never got off the ground.

Conversely, there is agreement that the only issue without doubt Confederate is the 1861 Dahlonga dollar. No dollars of this mintage were struck by the U. S. government, and since the Confederate Army took possession of the mint there in 1861, I believe we can safely ascribe this issue to the Confederacy.

I enjoy your fine publication which improves weekly.

Let me say that I truly admire your editorial stand towards the use of cleaners for coins and also your stand against the use of products to restore worn dates to coins.

I for one would rather not have a coin than have one with a restored date. If we make a practice of using such items in our collection, we definitely weaken its value, and interest. Besides there is always the possibility that in place of the date being restored, there was a new date created.

At best this practice is very deteriorating to the field of coin collecting.

Keep fighting, I'm sure that you are not alone.

Let those who would clutter their collection with such items, have their fling, but be sure to warn the innocent of the possibilities of being really TAKEN when accepting such as these.

I am writing this letter hoping you will inform all the readers of your fine paper on this gimmick of selling mint sealed envelopes on proof sets. I just purchased from a friend of mine (who I know is honest) 15 proof sets.

They were 1955 and he had just purchased them from a large proof set dealer in Kentucky that will only buy your proof sets if they are still mint sealed in the brown envelopes. I sold one of these sets and as they wanted to see the set I opened it for them.

You can imagine our surprise when I pulled out a piece of tin instead of a proof set. On opening another we got the same results and by bending the proof sets (trying to) we could tell all the rest of the mint sealed sets had a piece of tin in each one.

I can only assume that the envelopes had been steamed open and the tin put in and then resealed. The tin was about the same weight as the real proof set was.

I don't write letters to editors very often, but this week's paper really tees me off. Almost 100 pages of newsprint and how much space devoted to For Trade section? ONE PAGE. Keep up your high prices of advertising for your true collector and you are going to wonder what happens to renewals of subscriptions.

It seems just getting subscription prices and readers to read your paid-in advertising should justify FREE for trade ads. Actually over half of your for trade advertising is done by vest pocket dealers, anyone who offers ridiculous trades or others who will trade anything from soup to nuts, including diamonds, shotguns, etc. for numismatic material. How about developing this for trade section instead of sitting on your laurels which were earned over a year ago.

P. S. I'll bet you don't print this!

Your editorials part one and two, regarding your opinion of the Buffalo nickel restorers merits some favorable comments. You are indeed doing a fine job in trying to keep coin collecting on a fair level. The recent controversy over your editorial on that matter is worth some comments.

I can't quite agree with the ones who compare bringing out the date on a worn out nickel to that of restoring a precious, beautiful work of art, such as, perhaps, a painting by Michelangelo or such. In my opinion, the futile efforts of restoring a worn out buffalo is more like digging up a corpse and put it through a beauty treatment — practically the same thing.

Trying to explain to an editor the elementary but uncalled for definition of "deception" was made by a reader who failed to look up another word or two in the same dictionary — "coin collecting" or the such — where coin restoring is not mentioned as its definition.

Yes, I agree with you, that the legality of disposing of such chemically treated coins may be doubtful.

Also, this ever increasing invasion of bags and the such, on our supposedly limited market, and the rather ridiculous over enthusiasm over large and small dates, the somewhat childish doings over minor mint errors on Lincolns that need the Mount Palomar observatory lens to detect, and the audacity of a coin dealer who tried to sue a bank for having refused to sell him large amounts of coins (This dealer has since put on a disappearing act.), are not exactly a credit to our hobby.

I am sure most every one who has real coin collecting interest at heart will agree with me.

Again in your defense — no matter how much chemicals are poured on a nickel, thin and worn, nothing will ever bring back a high, even, well-rounded rim, clear letters and the distinguished features that makes our Indian nickels a truly beautiful coin.

This sort of controversy over these doings should be of interest to everyone — the numismatic public must be in the know, well informed — a few warned, the remainder cautioned!

Answering Mrs. H. J. Rieder, of Warren, Ohio, regarding her belief that there is no objection to silver coins being cleaned and polished bright.

There is a difference to a coin being cleaned and to a coin being polished bright. . . Silver coins will tarnish and turn colors especially proof or uncirculated early silver coins.

To use a chemical cleaner to remove this tarnish or color is acceptable, as this in no way impairs the condition of the coin. Some collectors like them bright and clean, others including the writer prefer them toned the way a silver coin will be if left untouched for many years.

However, to polish a coin bright means to buff the coin with a wheel with polishing rouge or some other agent. This removes the original luster the coin may have.

It removes a small portion of the coin's surface and thus damages the coin, lessens its value and is not acceptable. More often it is done to remove scratches, initials etc. from the coins surface.

Beware of polished bright coins. They are worth far less than supposed to be. Unless bought at bargain prices, it is better to let it go by.

Kennedy and Lincoln Medals Still Available In Bronze

To date, all platinum and silver medals in the Presidential Art Series have been SOLD OUT.

Currently, Kennedy and Lincoln bronze medals are available at a cost of $2.50 each. The Kennedy bronze medal is the medal that President Kennedy purchased to distribute on his mission to Europe last spring.

These medals, like all medals in the series whether platinum, silver or bronze, contain unusually high STANDARDS OF WORKMANSHIP and FINE HIGH RELIEF SCULPTURING. These qualities, plus the fact that the precious medals (platinum and silver) are produced in LIMITED QUANTITIES, contribute to the increasing value of the medals.

Both the Kennedy and Lincoln medals were struck by the MEDALLIC ART COMPANY, the only American company devoted exclusively to sculptured bas-relief. The intricate design and sculpture work was done by MR. RALPH MENCONI, an internationally recognized sculptor in the field of full portrait and high relief work.

The Presidential Art Medal Series is a CONTINUING PROGRAM in which three or four medals will be struck each year until the program is complete. New models will be struck thereafter as Presidents are inaugurated.

This exclusive offering will be a treasured possession whether you desire only one or the entire series. The PRACTICAL SIZE of the medals (slightly larger than a half dollar) makes them particularly well suited to display in an album, which will be offered in early December.

Orders are filled as received. We suggest that you select and order your Presidential Medals today. Ohio residents add 3% sales tax. DEALER INQUIRIES ARE INVITED.

Washington Medal Scheduled For December

In early December, Presidential Art Medals, Inc., will introduce the George Washington medal . . . third of the series. This medal will contain the same high standards of workmanship and fine high relief sculpturing as its predecessors in the series . . . the Kennedy and Lincoln medals.

Collectors' Clearinghouse Foreign Coins Discussed; German Notgeld Featured

(NOTE: for this International Edition, we will try to emphasize letters on foreign coinage).

Helen Boone of Galveston, Ind., sends in a rubbing of a coin that has "1 Cent" on one side, and "Munt Van Curacao" on the other and asks identification.

ANSWER: This coin is listed in Yeoman's "Modern World Coins", page 117, and Raymond's "Coins of the World", page 75. It is from Curacao, former Dutch colony now part of the self-governing Netherlands Antilles, a group of islands in the West Indies, north of Venezuela. Yeoman values it at 15 cents.

Most of Curacao coinage is and has been minted at Utrecht, Holland, but during the war it was struck at Philadelphia. "Munt Van" means "money of".

Some months ago we printed in this column some letters on "Notgeld", referring to war-time coinage of German cities. We treated the subject a little too lightly, perhaps, and called the pieces by a nickname, "Not Money".

Several collectors called us to task for it, and said that "Not" means "need" or "emergency", so that the coins are, properly speaking, "emergency money". Many countries have used such money, both officially and unofficially, the unofficial being privately made like the Civil War tokens of the United States. Official would be issued by governmental units like cities, etc.

In connection with this subject, Dr. Robert C. Gaskill, San Antonio, Texas, wrote an interesting letter, part of which we quote here.

"The Germans did not limit themselves to paper but used iron, zinc, aluminum, porcelain, clay, leather and sometimes even silk cloth. There is quite a lively interest in the German 'Notgeld', and in the French equivalent tokens and jetons.

"Going back to Trier (city mentioned in the column), a city on the border of Germany and Luxembourg, I think you will find that Trier is the preferred German name, though Treves is used, and that in Luxembourg they do use Treves, likewise in France but with an accented first 'e'.

"Its ancient name was Augusta Trevirorum and it was a Roman city. In this old city is a cathedral reputed to have the coat of Christ, 'The Robe'. Adjoining this is the Leibfrauenkirche.

"There are more Roman antiquities and evidences of the Holy Roman Empire in Treves than anywhere else in Germany; an amphitheatre where gladiators fought with beasts brought from Africa, local bears, etc.; Roman baths with three temperatures, the colossal quadrangle called Porta Nigra, etc.

"It is interesting to know that the place was originally occupied by the Treviri, a Celtic tribe of Belgic Gaul, and under the Romans became the capital of the province named Augusta Trevirorum."

The above is quoted to show where one can go from a standing start, that is, with a piece of "Notgeld" from Trier. It shows that numismatics can have some interesting angles or "offshoots".

Also on the subject of "Notgeld", Walter L. Tasker of Drexel Hill, Pa., wrote in with a slightly different touch. He enclosed samples of varieties of Notgeld paper issued by Austria, dated, as far as we can tell, 1921.

What makes these samples different from a lot of others is that Tasker also enclosed the original wrapper. On it is printed: "Notgeld des Landes Osterreich. 100 Stuck a 20 Heller -K 20.-" (Accent marks omitted).

Whether it was "bank wrapped" or not, we don't know. He says that he obtained five packs of 100 pieces each, with printing on only two of the five wrappers.

Tasker believes these were issued during the inflationary period after the first World War, and the 1921 date bears that out. He also feels that these should be compared with the paper fractional currency of the Civil War period rather than with the Civil War tokens.

E. B. Wetterlund of Brook, Ind., sends in some drawings in color of three foreign coins he or she would like identified.

ANSWER: FRANCISQVS II D G. REGY VT. SIC ET HIER REX REX on obverse; TORNESI 10 1850 on reverse; heavy copper. This has some interesting angles, one being that Francis II is listed as King of "The Two Sicilies" for three years only, 1859-1861, in Raymond's "Coins of the World" while Yeoman omits Sicily as an issuing country. But Raymond lists this coin, so it is from Sicily, which apparently issued no more coins after Francis. Naples was the other half of the pair.

The D. G. on this and many, many foreign coins means Dei Gratia, "By the Grace of God", usually followed by "Rex" or a version of it, meaning "King".

The second of the group has a bust with a real "beaver" and the inscription PETRUS II D.G.C. IMP. ET PERP. BRAS. DEF. 1869 on obverse, with arms and 20 Rs on reverse. This is Empire of Brazil, under Peter II as Emperor (1831-1889). This design was minted in only three years, 1868-1870. Brazil became a Republic in 1889, which is where Yeoman begins.

The third coin has on it CAR. FELIX D.G. REX SAR. CYP. ET HIER and 3 CENTISIMI 1826, all on reverse, arms obverse. This is a coin of Sardinia under Charles Felix (1821-1831). It was issued only in 1826, apparently, with that design, according to Raymond.

In order not to "shut out" the many collectors for whom foreign coins have no interest, this column will end with a letter of general interest which was "crowded out" of the supplies issue of Oct. 27.

Leo B. Shinn of Annandale, Va., asks some exceedingly appropriate questions about numismatic supplies, and his letter is worth quoting at length.

"In your October 13 issue, 'Collectors Clearinghouse' carried some advice about proof set holders. It said 'Get a safe one, made out of absolutely inert material, not one made of acetate'.

"I read an article recently in which a chemist mentioned certain inert materials (ether as a liquid, for example) and certain ones which were definitely not inert (acetate being mentioned as dangerous).

"What I would like to know (and probably many, many other collectors would, also) is: (a) what are the inert materials from which proof set and other holders can be made; and (b) who makes or sells such holders.

Iowa Collectors Organize New Club

A group of collectors gathered at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, recently and organized a new coin club, to be known as "The Iris City Coin Club."

Assisting at the organizational meeting were Wyard Troja of Fort Madison, president of the Iowa Numismatic Association, and Philip Budd, also of Fort Madison, second vice president of the state organization.

The club's charter roll will be open until January, and the next meeting was set for November 16.

"I ask because, as far as I know, virtually all the companies which handle transparent coin album-holder material use acetate. I would appreciate a reply, and am enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope."

ANSWER: The name of a company is being sent to you. We can't print it here for reasons previously noted. There may be more than one, but that is all we know about. For the answer to (a), see the column "Fair to Very Fine" Oct. 27 issue, in which was printed letters and information from that same chemist you mentioned. Incidentally, we would be glad to have on file the names of any companies that handle such material. All they have to do is write this column.

Phony $10 Bills In Wide Area

East coast residents, people as far west as Chicago and Omaha, Nebr., and as far south as Miami are warned to be on the alert for a new crop of counterfeit $10 bills.

The U. S. Secret Service sounded in the alert in New York City November 2, and urged residents to take a sharp look at $10 bills they receive.

Chief James J. Rowley said a new crop of counterfeits is being seized in New York at the rate of $2,000 a week. People who passed them have been arrested already not only in Manhattan, but also in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, but the fake money still is in circulation.

Illustrating either a good distribution system or the ease by which they can be carried by air or other travel rapidly to other parts of the country, the "fair" imitations, since appearing in New York September 22, have also been picked up in Syracuse, Miami, Atlantic City, Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio, Atlanta, Washington, Boston, Baltimore, North Carolina and as far west as Chicago and Omaha, Neb.

A second "issue" of fake $10's, in the amount of $25,000, was seized in New York last month before they got into general circulation. This case caused the arrest of four men in New York and three Brooklyn men in Georgia, where $6,820 in phony bills was seized.

Rowley called the second "issue" deceptive, rather than "fair," the description given the first. Comparison shows the first group to have a fuzzier portrait of Hamilton than either the original or the second "issue" of the counterfeits.

The first group of counterfeits purported to be $10 notes on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, series 1950. They have appeared with a variety of serial numbers and check letters.

Detailed descriptions of both this and the second "issue" are being circulated to banks and merchants, whom Mr. Rowley asked to be on the lookout for them. About this time last year the Secret Service broke $20 counterfeit rings in the New York area and in Virginia.

Counterfeiters usually believe that it doesn't "pay" to manufacture fakes of less than $20 denominations. Arrests and seizure of the fake $20's earlier this year may have caused other counterfeiters to resort to $10's as less likely to be scrutinized.

Trends Of Today's U.S. Coin Values

Smaller Coin Shows Pay Off Too!

By Jim Kelly
333 E. First St., Dayton 2, Ohio

There has been considerable talk and controversy regarding the larger number of coin conventions being held throughout the country. Complaints, for the most part, have come from dealers who are unable to make all of shows. My personal opinion is that anything that is of help to the collector, and beneficial to numismatics, should be encouraged rather than curtailed.

Jim Kelly

These numismatic gatherings give the collector the opportunity to display his collection, many times in competition with other collectors. It also gives him the chance to improve his collection through buying or trading with dealers or other collectors. Furthermore, he has the opportunity to meet socially, the people interested in the same hobby. Certainly these things are all beneficial to the collector and helps to stimulate the interest in collecting itself.

It is true that these conventions need the dealer's support; it is equally true that many dealers need the sales and publicity derived from these meetings. It would seem logical that it would be better for everyone concerned if the dealers supported the conventions in their own territory instead of feeling that it was necessary to attend only the larger ones, or those sponsored by certain organizations.

From my own experience I have found that at some of the larger conventions, which nearly all of the "name" dealers attended, most of the business was between ourselves. On other occasions I have attended unpublicized meetings and found it quite profitable.

In other words, I can see no reason why a club, or clubs who care to have a "get-together," should not be encouraged—and let the dealer figure out which are the most profitable for him to attend. There is no reason why anyone should have to attend them all!

Coins Relate History

Netherlands Fascination Leads To Coin Collecting

By Milton C. Strauch
Daly City, Calif.

The leading inspiration behind my hobby of collecting coins was my longtime fascination with the history of the Netherlands. The true extent of this fabulous field gradually unfolded before me as time passed, and as I became aware of the historic setting of each new acquisition.

Interest finds a way of grouping and establishing its own organization, and perhaps the most convenient presentation to make on this topic is to trace the development of coins through the various eras.

Early coins of truly Dutch and Belgian national character cannot be found before about 1572, for the region we now know as the Netherlands and Belgium was under foreign domination. The lowlands changed conquerors among the Burgundians, and the Spanish and Austrian Hapsburgs at various times before nationalism took root and the people threw off foreign control. Coins used in the Lowlands until 1572 emanated from whichever conqueror happened to be in possession at the time, and they reflected no local character whatsoever. This early period holds little interest for me, which is reflected in my collection by few coins.

Typical of how a coin represents an historic period is my coin from Leyden, a 5 Sols piece, 1574 (both in silver and paper). This town heroically withstood a terrible siege by the Spaniards in the general surge to freedom, and in the ensuing reaction by the Hapsburg conquerors. In order to break this long siege, the Dutch opened the dikes and flooded the pasture land, permitting their fleet to reach almost to the city gates. The Spanish led by the Duke of Alba were annihilated. Before the siege was broken, however, the citizens ran out of metal for coining, and Bibles from the churches were collected and sent to the temporary mint, where they were laminated and pressed into the original dies that were designed for metal coins.

Haarlem did not fare as well as her sister city, and was retaken by the Spanish after a savage defense. The conquerors in reprisal exacted terrible vengeance, murdering all the soldiers in the town. The governor of Haarlem donated his personal silver objects, which were melted down for coinage, and of which my collection includes a half-campaign dollar (1572). In 1577, Haarlem was recaptured by William of Orange, and permanently incorporated in the United Netherlands. This was the period when, along with the establishment of Dutch independence, this tiny nation gained mastery of the sea which it held for a substantial length of time. It was not until much later that the British were to challenge this position.

The nine Southern Provinces (modern Belgium), were united in 1578, by the Spanish. Prior to this, they had supported the northern states (modern Netherlands) in the revolt, but being unable to gain their freedom, as did their neighbors, they settled down to remain under Spanish rule. Brussels and a few other Belgian cities issued siege coins during this period.

The treaty of Westphalia, 1648, gave recognition of independence to the Netherlands. This was the start of the so-called "Golden Age". The individual provinces issued their own coins. Groningen, for example, struck a half Cavalier (7 Gulden) gold piece, kept in circulation until the time of Napoleon. Likewise Utrecht minted a cavalier (14 Gulden). The other provinces issued the above as well as 3 Gulden silver coins. Today's modern Rixdollar is a development from the individual silver Ducatoons, which first were struck in 1659.

The Netherlands Union, a very small country, could not continue to maintain her formidable naval position. The enriched motherland was fast growing soft, about the time of the Peace of Utrecht (1713), which ended the War of the Spanish Succession, and the Dutch were starting to give ground to their formidable British rivals. The Dutch were sympathetic with the cause of the American colonial revolt, and relations with England deteriorated. This led to open war in 1780, when England captured several of the Dutch colonies that she wanted. The Peace of Paris, 1784, wrote a sad ending to a disastrous war, in which the Dutch Empire started to shrink.

In Belgium, the Spanish period lasted until the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713. The territory was given to Austria, and became known as the Austrian Netherlands. They pursued a policy of benevolent despotism, giving the local provinces a large degree of autonomy, as witnessed in their various coins minted in their principal cities. Emperor Joseph's disregard for "National Prejudices" earned special dissatisfaction in the Austrian Netherlands, and a local revolt broke out in Brabant province, in 1788. Joseph died in 1790, succeeded by Leopold, who was a statesman. By his moderation he was able to quell the revolt and then restored their privileges. During this revolt, Brabant issued two coins, one of which is in my collection, the silver Crown of 1790 (also known as the Lion).

In 1795, the French set up the Batavian Republic in the aftermath and burst of energy which followed the French Revolution. The same type coins continued to be minted by the individual provinces. This was a period of political confusion in the Netherlands. Napoleon in 1806 placed his brother Louis on the throne, ending the Republic. This new puppet kingdom lasted only four years. All mints in the Netherlands were closed in 1806, with the unique exception of the one at Utrecht. During the brief reign of the too-gentle King Louis, who finally earned the dissatisfaction of Bonaparte, the coins were changed in design (denominations remaining the same), reproducing the effigy of Louis on the obverse, while on the reverse the Dutch coat of arms is depicted quartered to Napoleon's, adding the Imperial French eagles to the Dutch lions.

In 1810, the Kingdom of Holland was formally annexed as an integral part of the French Empire. The Utrecht mint joined the rest of the French Empire in coining the various gold and silver francs and minor coins, which were universal coinage in the Empire.

In 1792, the armies of the French Republic overran the Austrian Netherlands, annexing them immediately and directly to France. An interesting episode of this period is to be found in 1814, at the time of the rapid disintegration of the French Empire, when the Allies were besieging the city of Antwerp. The French were forced to mint emergency money, issuing 5 and 10 centimes pieces in copper.

With the overthrow of Napoleon, the Netherlands and Belgium were united by the Treaty of Vienna, 1815, which proved to be an unfortunate and unsatisfactory arrangement, terminated by the revolution of 1831, from which Belgium emerged as an independent state. Since that time, the two countries have remained in their present form. The Dutch have depicted the ruling monarch on their coins backed by the coat of arms of the House of Orange. The only exceptions to this form are the two and one-ducat gold pieces, depicting the traditional knight of armor, persisting until 1854 and 1937 respectively.

From 1831 on, the sole remaining Belgian mint, Brussels, followed the pattern of its neighbor, in depicting the ruling monarch on the coins, backed by the coat of arms of the ruling house, Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

The colonial coins conform very closely to the Motherland issues, in that they were nearly identical, being distinguished by a letter indicating destination for distribution. The Netherlands West Indies, comprising such islands as Curacao, St. Martin and St. Eustatius, carried the letter "W", replaced since World War II by the name Netherlands Antilles. The Netherlands East Indies, with such well known islands as Java,

Ohio Firm Has New Location

Federal Brand Enterprises Outgrows Previous Quarters

Michael Kolman Jr., Cleveland coin dealer for the past 20 years, moved into his new and larger quarters, at 4263 Pearl road on the city's West Side, recently. It is one of the largest coin show-rooms in the state of Ohio and in the entire country.

Now called Federal Brand Enterprises, the former name of his company was the Federal Coin Exchange.

The new quarters formerly housed a department store and the task of renovation was a Herculean one. The building contains three stories, each with 4,200 square feet of floor space, plus a large basement.

Kolman did a great deal of the work himself, including the wiring, plumbing, plastering, and paneling. He is a former builder, having operated Kolman Builders Inc. for a score of years.

"We're not finished by any means," commented Kolman in an interview with Coin World. "On the third floor, for example, we're still working on our auction room which will feature plush accommodations for over 200 persons."

"We're planning monthly auctions," he added, "and we expect to draw collectors and dealers from all over Northeastern Ohio. Still, these will be combination floor bid and mail bid sales, and we hope to stage the first one in a couple of months."

Kolman is a well-known auctioneer; he has conducted auctions at major conventions, including those of the American Numismatic Association, and the Penn-Ohio Coin Clubs.

"Since we're one of the largest numismatic dealers in the United States," said Kolman, "we require these larger quarters in order to properly house our expanding business. We simply outgrew our previous location in Parma Heights at the edge of Cleveland."

Kolman has been an ardent coin collector for the past 30 years and proudly displays part of his personal collection in the front show window and in his display cases. His odd and curious coins are particularly striking, and they include a huge whale's tooth, with elaborate designs inscribed on it by natives of the South Sea islands, stone money of the island of Yap, wire money of Africa.

Passers-by who are not even collectors often stop and stare at the window display for many minutes.

Mike Kolman deals in all types of coins from ancient to modern, but his own particular specialty is paper money and mint errors.

Federal Brand Enterprises is also one of the nation's largest producers of numismatic supplies. Products include pre-folded coin envelopes, maroon covered coin boxes, Coin-Sho Cards, Currency Sho-Cards, Federal Brand Cello Tubes, Glassine envelopes, and Federal Brand stamp packets.

After Kolman finished listing the many products his company manufactures he said almost casually, "Right now, we're working on a new type coin holder which we feel will revolutionize the coin industry."

Federal Brands has sufficient space now so that it will also deal in stamps and philatelic supplies, jewelry and office equipment, "but coins and numismatic supplies are certainly the heart of our operation," emphasized Kolman.

Mike Kolman published his "The Numismatic Lincoln Cent Errors" early in 1961, and nearly 5,000 copies have been sold, an amazing figure considering the highly specialized nature of the book's subject. A revised and larger edition, which will include Flying Eagle and Indian cent errors, will be ready for distribution in less than 60 days.

The Cleveland numismatist, who was assisted by Dr. Jack Litman of Akron, Ohio, in classifying mint errors for the Lincoln cent book, devised the Kolit Position Gauge which measures the degree that coins are struck off center. The term "Kolit" is, of course, a combination of the two men's names.

Kolman is assisted by a large staff of experienced numismatists in the operation of Federal Brand Enterprises. They are: Douglas Boutall, manager; Jack I. M. Jacobs, advertising and public relations; Michael Kolman III, junior vice president; May Saporito, secretary; and staff members Gene Mushinski, Ray Montursi, Myron Zdziechowski, and James Hausknecht.

The Clevelander is a former president of Penn-Ohio Coin Clubs, is Life Member No. 76 of the American Numismatic Association, belongs to the Professional Numismatists Guild, the International Association of Professional Numismatists, and is the organizer of C. O. M. E., now named Collectors of Numismatic Errors.

Kolman and his wife Edna make their home at 5940 Pearl Road, Parma Heights, Ohio. Thirteen-year-old daughter Patsy has accompanied her father on many convention trips and is herself an avid collector of numismatic errors. An older daughter, Dorothy, is married.

Mike's brother Ed operates his own numismatic business, the Federal Coin Exchange, in The Old Arcade in downtown Cleveland.

Swan Heads Club Again

Paul Swan was reelected president at a recent meeting of the Carbondale-Simpson Numismatic Club at Zurin's Coin Center in Simpson, Pa., it was reported.

Other members elected were: Robert Vannan, vice president; Thomas McDonell, secretary, and Willis Mathews, treasurer.

The club set May 2, 1962, as a tentative date for a regional coin show, possibly in the Slovak Parish Hall, Simpson.

Lake Tahoe Coin Festival Draws Crowd

The Lake Tahoe, Calif., Coin Club Festival, held recently at Tahoe Harrah's Banquet Room in Stateline, Nev., drew over 350 collectors and dealers reports Merle E. Crandall, chairman.

"Some of those attending came from as far as Oregon," commented Crandall, "and we're pleased at the attendance since we're a relatively small club."

John Sears of San Francisco, Calif., won the Best of Show award in the exhibit competition and also took a first place in the coin category of the exhibits. Mrs. J. J. Rhody of Atwater, Calif., won second and third places in coins. Other winners were:

Tokens, medals and paper money: first, Rudy Gjurovich, San Jose, Calif.; second, Catherine Hunter, Stateline, Calif.

Miscellaneous: first and second, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rhody; third Roy Hill, San Francisco.

Nearly 200 lots of material were sold in the auction, 60 per cent on the floor, and 40 per cent through mail bids.

A show highlight was the Hawaiian flower display in Tahoe Harrah's banquet room. The flowers were flown in directly from Hawaii through the courtesy of Tom McAfee, a Lake Tahoe club member who lives in Honolulu.

Numismatic Study Needed

No Single Book Dedicated To Venezuelan Coin Data

By Peter Franquet
Barcelona, Venezuela

Venezuelan money has had a very nebulous past. Strange as it may seem, there is no one book completely dedicated to the history of Venezuelan Numismatics. The latter word signifies the science of money and although a hobby in itself, it is more of a science to archaeologists and historians who wish to trace the origin of mankind. Whatever pursuit man has followed since the beginning of time has been related to the question of exchange. First barter and then the invention of a medium of exchange which would facilitate barter. After all the only real purpose of money is to exchange it for some service or commodity which we require.

In the 18th century Venezuela was still a rural area, so to speak, of Colombia and recorded in history books as "Capitania General de Venezuela". Colombia was roughly the seat of the Spanish Government which embraced Colombia, Panama and Venezuela, and it is significant that the reason for this organization was due to the wealth of Colombia over the areas of its satellite neighbors. Gold and other riches were first found in Colombia, as well as the third Spanish mint in America, so naturally it became the seat of Government over its surrounding colonies. There again the preponderance of money!

During this period of time the circulation of money, in the form of gold and silver coins, was very poor in Venezuela. The mints in Bogota and Popayan were crude examples compared with today's standards and this was obviously due to the lack of technique and equipment which characterizes today's mints.

Output of coins from Colombia, therefore, was in direct relation to the methods utilized, so La Capitania General de Venezuela was a poor recipient of its share. The Spaniards and Criollos who lived here were not exactly rich people. Venezuela did not have much to export, therefore income from abroad was nil. There was little money and in reality people did not need much of this device. Most everyone produced the food he required and clothing was utilized for years on end. Consequently the few things which had to be acquired from another source were secured by barter.

During the early period of Venezuelan history, however, there was one precious possession which was highly sought after and which served as a medium of exchange. Pearls! Since the discovery of the Island of Margarita by Columbus, pearls were exploited by the Spaniards. To them was assigned a value in direct ratio to their weight. Early merchants carried with them small scales to weigh the pearls which were utilized to buy goods. Other commodities were utilized by the colonizers to barter for goods were cocoa beans. The chocolate extracted from these beans was highly prized in Spanish homes, much as spices from the Orient were highly prized by the Merchants of Venice.

With the growth of Venezuela an increase in commercial relations with the world, there was a crying need for a legal currency. Money was gradually coming from Mexico, Peru, Spain and even France. But this brought all of the complications which usually attend a mixed currency. Confusion reigned in places where the French Franc was sought to be paid along with some Spanish maravedises, English Shillings and Mexican Reales.

Benjamin Franklin's maxim about necessity being the mother of invention held true to form and in the first few years of the Nineteenth Century, Caracas opened its first mint at the corner of El Cuno. Commensurate with the progress of the country at that time, it was a makeshift plant with crude equipment and metal of low purity.

Methods similar to those of the early years of Colombian mints were utilized which produced coins in the following denominations: 4 reales, 2 reales, 1 real, and 1/4 real. In some instances if the coin produced weighed a little more than the intrinsic value of the metal, bits were filed off or cut away by chisels. Indeed, an arbitrary manner of controlling weights and measures! The three larger denominations carried on the obverse the Cross of Santiago with the castles and lions of the Kings of Spain and the legend, F7, which stood for the monarch who reigned in Spain at that time, Ferdinand 7th. On the reverse appeared the Arabic numeral corresponding to the denomination, PLUS ULTRA, the date, Caracas and B. S., which stood for Santa Fe de Bogota, the seat of the Colonial Government. These coins are quite scarce and valuable today as they represent the first effort to mint coins in Venezuela under the Spanish Government.

The war of Independence brought chaos to the money of the country. There were no banks, no credit facilities and wealthy royalists buried their money. The Republican Government needed money very badly to further their cause. In the absence of metal, or hard money, the French expedient of paper money was borrowed, in denominations of one real. This proved disastrous. People who bought goods in a store and paid with hard money refused to accept paper money in exchange. Furthermore the currency was relatively easy to forge and soon the market was flooded with counterfeits. This state of financial affairs certainly did not help the Republican cause one bit and soon paper money died a natural death.

From 1811 to 1830 the Republicans minted several types of coins which are today rarities. They consisted of lower denominations, such as 1 real, 1/2 real, and 1/4 real. The first two types were made of silver melted down from the personal possessions of the few wealthy rebels. The third type was a poor mixture of copper and silver. In 1830 a 1/4 real was minted as the last effort of the patriots. This priceless piece, it is claimed from good authority, originated from the silverware belonging to the Liberator Bolivar. The obverse shows a Cornucopia, signifying abundance and one of the symbols of the new regime. The reverse shows the legend VENZ. 1/4 attesting to its origin and its denomination.

From 1830 until the Federation of Venezuela chaos reigned. There was no legal currency in Venezuela. Coins of all countries circulated and the various governments which ruled during this time made feeble efforts to enact and enforce legislation to this end. General Monagas had numerous coins made in England but of copper only. They were issued in one centavo, half centavo and quarter centavo pieces. They were commonly referred to as "Monagueros". General Paez had coins minted in Paris depicting his effigy with legend CIUDADANO ESCLARECIDO on the obverse. On the reverse appeared REPUBLICA DE VENEZUELA, date and the denomination.

But neither Monagas nor Paez fulfilled the economic needs of the country. Monagas' coins for one part were of fractional issues and Paez's coins were minted in small numbers and practically never circulated.

Finally in 1879, General Guzman Blanco founded the currency with which we are familiar today. He founded the Bolivar de Plata, as the monetary unit of Venezuela. This beautiful coin was designed by Albert Barre, a noted French designer. The first coins were therefore minted in Paris. They consisted of the half real, real, bolivar, two bolivar, two and a half bolivar pieces (now nonexistent) and the five bolivar piece. Trial patterns were minted as early as 1873 which are today collector's items, but the issues for general circulation were released in 1879. Also, in 1875 the first Venezuelan gold coin was issued. This was the 25 bolivar piece. This denomination was issued only once and constitutes a rare piece.

In 1886 other gold denominations were minted, including the one hundred bolivar piece, and the twenty bolivar piece.

The Bs. 100 gold coin was issued only four years, 1886, 1887, 1888 and 1889. These coins were minted in Caracas from dies and with machinery brought from Paris. They were made of gold mined at El Callao in the State of Bolivar, Venezuela. The Bs. 20 gold piece is the more common variety of Venezuelan gold, having been minted on eight different occasions from 1886 through 1912. In 1913, the Bolivar de Oro was adopted as monetary unit of the country, in substitution of the silver bolivar decreed in 1879. Venezuelan gold circulated abundantly before 1935, a reflection of the growing stability of its monetary system. However, as in the case of other countries throughout the world, the medium of exchange was gradually being replaced by paper currency due to the fact that gold was too heavy and paper was easier to handle.

In 1930 the last gold coin was minted in Venezuela; namely the BS. 10 denomination. General Gomez minted 500,000 pieces to commemorate the first century of Bolivar's death. These coins are not too difficult to secure and are the size of a silver real.

Franquet U. S. Educated

Peter Franquet, Barcelona, Venezuela, South America.

Peter Franquet was born in Valencia, Spain, in 1913, and migrated with his parents and four other brothers and sisters in 1916. The family first settled in New Jersey and later on the north-shore of Long Island where he was brought up and educated.

"So, we were just another of the millions of immigrant families," recalls the numismatist.

He attended Flushing High School and New York University as a premed student. However, during the height of the economic depression, he was compelled to abandon his studies in order to work and help out with the family finances.

"Who ever would have dreamed then of putting aside one each of the new mint coins as they were issued each year?" he queries.

It wasn't until during the past generation or the past decade, comments Franquet, that people started collecting current mint coins. He also cites this same opinion as coming from Sr. Clico, his "worthy colleague" in Spain.

"Before then," says Franquet, "we had exclusively that vanishing breed of people who collected just for the pleasure it gave them."

Finally, the Venezuelan resident said, in 1940, he got a job with an American oil company, and has been there ever since. He married a young lady from that country.

He was struck by the beauty of the 100 bolivar gold piece. A banker friend gave him one, and the numismatic bug bit him.

"Since there is no true antidote, well, here I am," said Franquet.

"The funny thing about it is that over 90 per cent of my Venezuelan coins have been acquired outside this country. The real good stuff, the choice pieces are just not here. There is lots of American gold hoarded, remnants of the time not long ago when practically all transactions were made in gold, especially American," concluded Franquet.

No Guinea Coin

The guinea is a money unit used in Britain, though there is no longer any coin representing the amount. Prices are often computed in terms of guineas rather than pounds.

Today Venezuela has more gold than at any other period in its history. What is more, Venezuela's currency is still based on the gold standard, one of the few remaining countries in the world to enjoy this bonanza! In addition to the silver coins which we all know, Bs. 100 and Bs. 20 gold pieces are still legal tender. Although the other gold coins minted are not mentioned in the Currency Act of February 17, 1954, it is presumed that they also are legal tender. The reason no one sees gold coins in fiscal transaction is due to the fact that the metal content of the coin is worth more than its assigned value. The Law states that Venezuelan gold coins are of compulsory receipt, without any limitation. The compulsory acceptance of silver coins, however, is limited from Bs. 1000 in the case of five bolivares pieces to Bs. 20 in the case of 12 1/2 centimos and one centavo pieces. Banks, however, are required to accept any quantity of coins tendered by a person.

Those persons refusing to accept the quantities of coins stipulated by law shall be fined double the value refused.

The basic difference between gold and silver coins is that the face of Bolivar faces from left to right on the obverse in the case of gold, and from right to left in the case of silver. Another fact little known, but quite indicative of the stability of the currency, is that double the value of all silver and nickel coins minted shall be acquired in gold and held in reserve in the National Treasury as guarantee.

The Bolivar de Oro contains 0.290323 grams of fine gold whereas the American Gold Dollar contains 0.88867 grams of the same metal. The ratio of one to the other gives us a figure of Bs. 3.06 to the dollar. Actually this is gold parity relationship. This rate is utilized in official transactions by the Government whereas the rates of Bs. 3.35 and 4.58 to the dollar are utilized by banks in commercial transactions, depending on the type of material to be imported.

During the 1930's the rate of exchange was Bs. 5.20 to the dollar. This is the true value of Venezuelan silver to American gold, however, due to the strong gold position of Venezuela the exchange rate is now strictly to gold for gold parity.

It has been estimated that the total money in Venezuela one hundred and fifty years ago amounted to Bs. 15,000,000. Today, that amount would constitute roughly about two days income by the National Treasury.

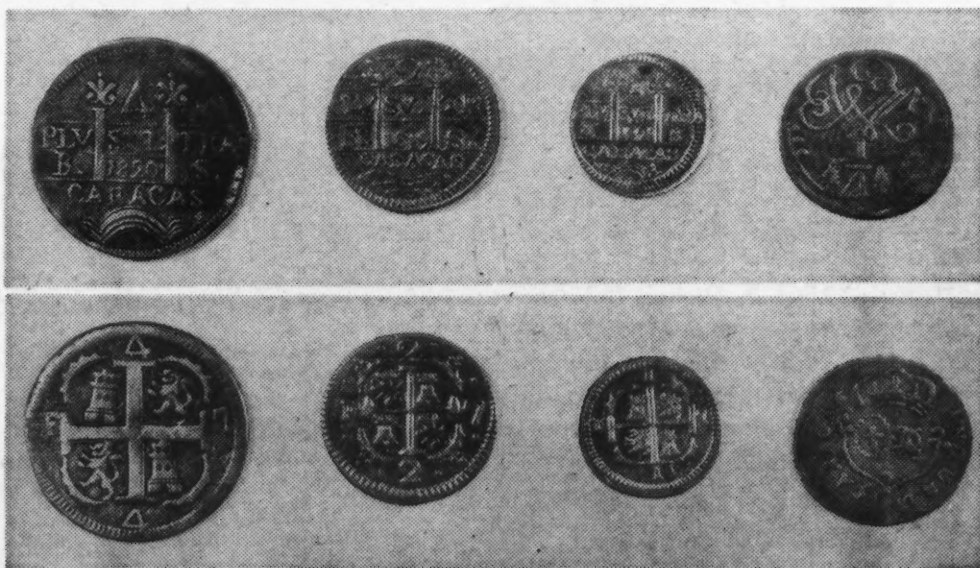

Certainly Venezuelan coins offer an admirable field for those interested in this science because they have beauty and are sufficiently scarce in the earlier issues to make them desirable possessions.

Whereas only 64,000 pieces of Bs. 100 gold were minted in Venezuela, more than half of which were melted down by dentists, over one hundred million pieces of American $20 gold coins were minted in the United States!

As mentioned in the beginning of this article, very little is known of Venezuelan Numismatics. Current catalogs on coins of the world list a few Venezuelan specimens at artificially low prices. These prices have been handed down from one cataloguer to another and certainly are not commensurate with the traditional rules of evaluating coins; namely, scarcity of issue and pedigree. However, the phenomenal growth of the economy of this country should bring forth to light new facts on this basic subject.

Pound From Libra

The unit of British money is the pound, written from the Latin "libra."

Biography Of Napoleon Illustrated By Medals

By S. Fred Rosenthal
Shaker Heights, Ohio
A.N.A. 10889

It is doubtful whether any medals record a person's life, his accomplishments and events influenced by this life as faithfully as do the medals of Napoleon Bonaparte. Almost his entire biography may be illustrated with medals issued in France and in other countries during his life, and in later years, when his impact, his rise and fall were fully realized.

He was born in 1769 in Ajaccio, Corsica, sent to Military School in Briennes, France, 1779 and graduated from Military School in Paris in 1785 with the rank of Sublieutenant in the Artillery. He then returned to Corsica.

In 1793 Napoleon rejoined the French army as a Lieutenant in the Artillery. France had gone through hectic years since 1789, when the underprivileged classes revolted against the feudal oppression. The climax of the revolution came on July 14, 1789, when an excited mob stormed the famous French prison "La Bastille" and established a new government "La Commune" in Paris. This day of liberation is still celebrated yearly in France as Bastille Day.

A revolutionary Tribunal governed this new Republic under Robespierre and a constitution, based on the American Declaration of Independence was drawn up by a council of Elders. It had a similar preamble as our constitution, a "Declaration of the Rights of Man". The Tribunal was marked by corruption. Robespierre himself was executed in 1794. The reins of Government were taken over by a Directorate, which was not much better than the Robespierre regime.

Napoleon attracted the attention of his superiors at Toulon in 1793. The city was in the hands of the English and Monarchist rebels, backed by England. When his brilliant strategy won the town, he was promoted to Brigadier General.

By 1795 he was the man of the hour. He ruthlessly put down a new uprising against the Republic in Paris by use of artillery against the rebels. He casually referred to it as a "whiff of Grapeshot".

Shortly after this one-sided street battle he met Josephine. Her first husband, Viscount de Beauharnais, who incidentally had fought in the American Revolution under Lafayette, had been a victim of the Guillotine. Napoleon had honored Beauharnais' son, Eugene's request to return his father's sword. When his mother came to thank Napoleon, it was love at first sight, resulting in marriage on March 6, 1796, four days after Napoleon was named Commander of the Italian Campaign. The marriage proved to be a stormy one. Josephine deceived him with many boy friends, but Napoleon loved her deeply and saved the marriage to avoid a scandal.

In 1797 Napoleon was made Commander of the Italian Campaign, which had been going poorly up to that time. He was then 27 years old. He transformed a ragged, starving and demoralized horde of soldiers into an invincible army. Upon taking command he told his troops "You are hungry and naked. The Republic owes you much, but she has not the means to pay her debts. I have come to lead you into the most fertile plains, the sun beholds. Rich provinces, opulent towns, all shall be at your disposal. With such prospects, can your courage fail?"

The soldiers worshipped him, because he kept his word and permitted them to enrich themselves. He won three great victories in Piedmont and Lombardy. The Peace Treaty of Camp Formio was dictated by him.

Napoleon formed two new states, Liguria, the present French Riviera, and the Cisalpine Republic, which was created by a plebiscite, which he of course controlled, all glorified by Medals.

Napoleon not only managed to keep this wonderful army, which lived off the land at no cost to the republic, but in addition he dispatched to Paris millions in money as well as valuable paintings, statues and priceless manuscripts. One of the medals shows the famous statue of Venus de Medici which he sent to France. Today it is back in the Uffizi Galleries in Florence. The other famous Venus Statue, the Venus de Milo, which is now in the Louvre in Paris, was brought there in 1830 by Louis XVIII.

England disliked Napoleon. For a while he toyed with the idea of an invasion of the British Isles, but discarded it as impractical and decided to strike at England's economy through Egypt. He led an expedition into Egypt in 1798 and while he won the battle of the Pyramids, he lost his fleet at Abukir. His famous words to the Army at the battle of the Pyramids are inscribed on a medal, "Soldiers from the summit of these Pyramids Forty centuries look down upon you."

While in Cairo, he received word of French reverses in Italy and hurried back to Paris. He did not find the same France he had left. Italy had practically been lost. The Directorate caught between the Royalists on one side and extreme revolutionists on the other, had little power and dignity left. The situation was ripe for new leadership.

On October 9, 1799, with the help of his brother Lucienne, he overthrew the "Directorate" in a sudden coup d'Etat and established the "Consulate", patterned on old Roman lines. The Three Consuls who were named, were Bonaparte, First Consul; Comperes, Second Consul; and Lebrun, Third Consul. Actually the second and third Consul had little to say. Napoleon permitted no check on his authority. The night of his election he told Josephine, "Tomorrow we will be sleeping in the Royal Palace". He moved in, held court like a Monarch and set about suppressing all opposition. The Senate, the Legislature, all created by the same Constitution, ceased to be a safeguard for the Republic. They became his assistants and he ruled as undisputed dictator.

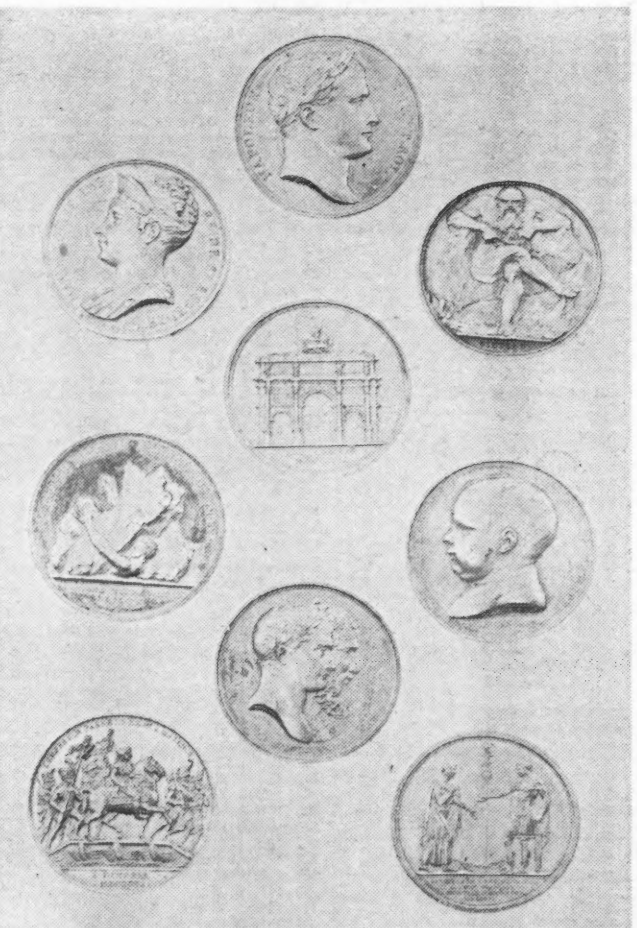

The medals now show him as First Consul, there is no more mention of a second or third Consul. He was, however, a constructive lawmaker. He made peace with the church, he halted inflation, he formed the Bank of France, and established the famous "Code Napoleon", a milestone in the development of modern Civil Law. He built the Simplon Tunnel, connecting France and Italy, a remarkable engineering feat. After an attempt on his life he purged the Chamber of Deputies, and suppressed liberal newspapers.

In 1800 he began his conquest of Europe. Just look at his record. He crossed the Rhine and the Danube. He conquered Bavaria and made a victorious entry into Munich. He crossed the Alps via the St. Bernard Pass and defeated the Austrians at Marengo. His peace treaty with the Austrians at Luneville is recorded on a medal. He rewarded his victorious officers by forming the "Legion of Honor". He distributed other honors and decorations to his faithful. In 1803 he was elected Consul for life, but that did not satisfy his ambitions. He insisted on becoming Emperor and in 1804 a docile Senate passed the decree and also gave him the right to choose his own successor.

Notre Dame Cathedral on December 2, 1804. Pope Pius VII came from Rome to officiate, but Napoleon took the Crown from the Pope's hands and put it on his own head. He also crowned Josephine.

He reorganized the French mint and issued "Royal specie and Currency". Later he crowned himself King of Italy at a second coronation in Milan. The crown he used was the Iron Crown worn by Charlemagne.

Great festivities followed the coronation, but Napoleon's old enemies gave him little rest. England, which had already declared war on France in 1803, formed an alliance with Austria, Russia, Sweden and Prussia against him, engaging him in war from 1805 until 1807.

Again he crossed the Rhine. he defeated the Austrians at Austerlitz. He defeated the Russians at Friedland. He bested the Prussians at Jena. He created a buffer state out of Prussian territory, forming the Rhine Federation. He made peace with Sweden and signed a peace treaty with the defeated Nations at Tilsit. You can see he kept the medal makers busy. Now he was undisputed Master of Western Europe. England had no allies left on the mainland. He set about to remake the map of Europe. Many of his medals record the changes.

He put his brother Louis on the throne of Holland. He reunited Venice with Italy. He conquered Naples and added the territory to Italy. He entered Berlin as Conqueror through the Brandenburg Gate. He forced an alliance with the powerful Kings of Saxony. He met with Emperor Franz I of Austria at Ustiz. As a result of this meeting he took Vienna and Pressburg without bloodshed. He set up court in the beautiful ancestral castle of Schoenbrunn near Vienna and received deputations from France there. The Great Triumphal Arch erected in Paris for his return still stands.

In 1809 Austria attempted to renew the warfare. Napoleon promptly entered Austria by crossing the Vistula under fire. He defeated the Austrians at Esslingen. Again he set up headquarters at beautiful Schoenbrunn. By that time he had a new love, the Polish Countess Walewska, who lived with him in bliss and splendor at Schoenbrunn.

He returned to Paris in January, 1810. Once back in France, Napoleon decided that his fame would be enhanced if he connected himself with royalty. He told Josephine that the empire needed an heir, that he would have to divorce her as she was childless. It was a terrible blow to her at first but it seems that she soon consoled herself with a new paramour.

But where to pick the Empress. After a family conference, in which, strange to relate, Josephine's son, now Napoleon's trusted Adjutant, participated, it was decided to pick one of the daughters of Franz the First of Austria. He had thirteen children and his mother had seventeen and there seemed a fair enough chance for an heir. Napoleon addressed a letter to the Emperor of Austria. He sent it with a delegation, loaded with gifts for the new bride. He made it clear in the letter that he did not expect a negative answer.

The Bride arrived. Napoleon was pleased, she was not a bit plain looking for a mail order bride. They were married with great pomp in April 1810. Many medals were struck to commemorate the wedding of Napoleon and Marie Louise. One showing the couple dressed in Roman Togas was undoubtedly aimed to impress the Italians.

Italy was also honored on that occasion, when Napoleon, dedicated a French Academy in Rome, his second capital.

The greatest joy in Napoleon's life came in March, 1811 when his son was born. He bestowed on him the title, "King of Rome" and to please the Austrian mother the title of "Duke of Reichstadt", and named him officially as his successor. The French people had a pet name for him. They called him "L'Aiglon", the little Eagle. Shortly after his son was born, he brought his mistress, Waleska, and her son to Paris.

There is a beautiful medal depicting one of Napoleon's proudest moments, the baptism of his son. Another medal shows the entire happy family.

Soon other trouble spots arose. Peninsular war in Spain broke out. It did not take long to conquer Madrid and Napoleon named his brother Joseph as King of Spain.

Just one proud nation remained on the continent and had to be brought to its knees, Russia. Napoleon formed the Grand Army to subdue his only remaining rival. He entered Moskau after a great battle on September 7, 1812, but learned the same night the terrible Russian Strategy. The scorched earth policy caused Napoleon's Grand Army to retreat. The retreat soon became a complete rout and Napoleon lost a half a million men.

The hold Napoleon had on his subjects was amazing. Back in Paris he formed a new army and proceeded to fight a new coalition formed by his old enemies including England. He led his army back into Germany but was decisively defeated at Leipzig. He fled back to France and was at Fontainebleau when the Tsar entered.

FOLKS.....

I'm on the fly again (plane to Ft. Wayne). However, there are a couple of bones I want to pick first. There is nothing worse that can happen than two groups trying to run two coin shows a few miles apart at the same time. Well, January is vacation time for many dealers and collectors who come to Florida for our annual state convention (F.U.N.) It's always a good show, with every major dealer represented. Last year, as a fine addition, the Tampa boys put on a show 2 days later—and it was a good one. This year, 2 separate groups want to put on shows in Tampa and Sarasota at the same time. Well, I think it's silly, and perhaps if they see this conflict brought to light, somebody will flip a coin and we can stagger the 2 shows. The Tampa show last year was possibly the finest retail show I have ever attended, while this year the Sarasota show is down on a fine beach, just right for wives and kids.

Now, on with another crusade. Certain dealers are killing the proof set business. It was the original intention of the U.S. Mint to supply one proof set each year to each collector. Old timers inserted these proof coins into their sets as objects of beauty. Today, Uncle makes proofs by the million, and he makes money on everyone. Some speculators own thousands of sets, yet have actually never seen a single set of certain years of their holdings. Anyway, Uncle still hasn't made enough proof sets in any single year to supply every single collector. Furthermore, most of the large proof set dealers today have absolutely no intention of paying their buying prices, given 10 sets in stock. Let's call a spade a spade. No one can make a living selling an item on 10% margin unless it is very expensive or very hot and fast moving. Proofs were just that 1½ years ago, when the 1956 sets jumped from $3.00 to $8.00. Today, they are just a good, steady commodity. The point I want to make is that people who buy and sell proofs are entitled to a 20% margin in small lots, they should advertise to buy and sell over this margin, and they should be prepared to pay their buying prices. 10% is for the birds.

Best, SHOTGUN

BU COIN SETS

When everything is said and done BU coin set sales have proven more satisfying and rewarding than anything else. They at least bear some resemblance to a coin collection, and will gain in value in a sure and steady fashion. Christmas is coming up, so I'm going to get back into the business full swing again. At this writing I'm sold out of both Roosevelt and Jefferson sets, so if anyone has sets or a roll set for sale, give me a card or call. I've never yet returned a check for a Lincoln set.

From top, an 1816 medal, St. Helena, May 2, 1821, a German piece, Peace at Schoenbrunn, the Bank of France, Baptism of Napoleon's son, the King of Rome, Funeral of Napoleon, Napoleon, Premier Council, Death on St. Helena.

Napoleon . . .

tered Paris. On April 16, 1814 he was forced to abdicate.

The Allies named Louis XVIII, the brother of Louis XVI, to be King of France. The Allies were generous to Napoleon because the Tsar of Russia secretly admired him. He arranged it so that Napoleon was granted a small harmless island, Elba, to govern.

There was a tearful farewell when Napoleon bid his old guard goodbye. They lined up in the courtyard at Fontainebleau and blubbered like babies. He kissed the colors, something that he had never done before. A veiled woman had waited in the courtyard for him all night, but he left without seeing her. Later he sent for her. It was Walewska, the only one who remained loyal to him. The Empress and her son had forsaken him. She had written a letter to her father putting herself under the protection of the Allies. She too had acquired a lover, an Austrian Officer.

The Pope promptly excommunicated Napoleon as an "Outlaw" and effective propaganda finally estranged the French people.

Ten months later in February, 1815 while the Allies were meeting in Vienna to decide on the new borders of a greatly reduced France he reappeared in Paris. Louis XVIII promptly fled Napoleon's personal magnetism did not fail. Soon he had a formidable army behind him. He was master again, but only for a period of 100 days. Actually he would have been satisfied to remain King of France and live peacefully within the boundaries laid down by the Allies, Vienna decreed otherwise.

He was undermined by the duplicity of Talleyrand, his Foreign Minister who actually worked for Austria and by the defection of Marmont his trusted General who turned the army over to the Allies and even by the intrigue of his own family.

His star settled finally when his army was defeated at Waterloo on June 18, 1815. He had almost caused the English troops to waver, when Blucher with 60,000 fresh German troops came upon the battlefield. This changed the history of the world. The French army was no more.

A grateful England issued a medal to the German General Blucher, calling him "The Pride of Our Country" and "The Hero of Freedom". Napoleon tried to escape to America, but British ships patrolled every French harbor. He finally surrendered to Captain Maitland of the British battleship Bellerophon and asked for asylum in England. The Prince Regent of Britain never answered his request, but ordered Napoleon taken to St. Helena, a barren island in the South Atlantic, 1,200 miles west of Africa. There he died of cancer in 1821.

One medal gives part of his will, "I desire my body to rest on the banks of the Seine, in the midst of the French people whom I always loved."

Napoleon's will is a fascinating document. It stated, "I bequeath the shame of my death to the Royal House of England". Another part of the will, of interest to collectors reads "I wish my executors to make a collection of engravings, pictures and medals which may give my son sound ideas and destroy the erroneous ideas which the policies of a foreign land have tried to impress upon him. I want him to see things as they really were. My memory will be the glory of his life".

His son, whom he had named Napoleon II, actually never ruled. He was a prisoner in Austria where he died of tuberculosis in 1831.

France could not forget Napoleon. His ashes were returned to France on a battleship in 1840. A funeral with great honors was held in the Church of the Invalides.

In 1841, Napoleon was named an

Oak Park Coin Club Meets Twice Monthly

The Oak Park, Mich., Coin Club has scheduled an additional meeting each month and will meet every first and third Thursday, with its second November session having been slated for the 16th with an auction to be featured.

Organized last spring, the Oak Park club holds its meetings in the Oak Park Community Center, 14,000 Oak Park Boulevard, starting at 8 p.m. Interested collectors are invited to attend.

Slides Form Club Program

The Iowa City, Iowa, Old Capitol Coin Club, in continuing an educational program started last year, recently showed the first half of a special slide program, "Types of Regular Issue United States Coins."

The second half of the slide program will be shown at the club's November meeting.

A coin auction is also scheduled to follow the November meeting.

Club Plans Programs

The Hobart, Ind., Coin Club met recently at the Community Room of the Hobart Savings and Loan. Plans are being made to obtain speakers for future meetings of the newly organized club.

"Immortal". A great column was created in the Place Vendôme cast from cannons captured by him. It commemorates the storming of the Bastille, which started it all.

In 1853 the French built a magnificent Tomb in the Church of Invalides under the Dome.

Napoleon I will live in history forever. Born in obscurity he rose with tremendous strides. For 25 years he dominated Europe. No man ever had as many enemies and as many admirers. No military leader ever enjoyed the devotion and loyalty of his soldiers as did Napoleon. When his enemies hurled him from the top, he arose again triumphant, only to be beaten down again, to die a prisoner and a heart-broken exile. Napoleon's life was a tremendous tragedy. Napoleon Medals record it faithfully.

Brisk Auction Held At New Jersey Meet

The Union County Coin Club, Linden, N. J., met recently at the Polish National Hall with 60 members, and 12 guests in attendance.

President Lee Goodman welcomed the visitors, and the evening was topped off with a brisk auction conducted by Ted Schwartz of Livingston, N. J. Some key Lincoln cents and gold pieces were auctioned off at bargain prices, it was reported.

Caesar Honored

During his last year of life, Julius Caesar was given the extraordinary honor of having his portrait placed on regular coinage struck at the mint in Rome.

Trends Of Today's Canadian Coin Values

Variations In Mintage Unexplained

By J. E. Charlton
80 Richmond Street East
Toronto 1, Ont., Canada

A reader asks why the Canadian 1889 10c piece with a reported issue of 600,000 is priced so much higher than the 1890 with an issue of 450,000. Other noted examples are the 1875 five cent, ten cent and twenty-five cent pieces. All of these denominations are much rarer and higher in value than the Mint report would indicate.

It would appear that the majority of the coins minted were melted down or lost at sea in a shipment from England. While there are other such examples, mostly in the Victoria series, the rarity of the 1936 Dot cent and ten cent piece have puzzled numismatists for many years.

Another contributing factor to the rarity of certain Canadian coins is the fact that the reverses were more subject to wear than others due to the concavity. The 1900-H cent is never found with an equal amount of wear on the obverse and reverse.

With the obverse in F-VF, the reverse will be G-VG. This means that the reverse will be mostly obliterated, if the obverse is VG-F.

The Newfoundland Victoria 20c and 50c pieces are also noted for the extra wear on the reverses compared to the obverses.

NOTE: Large Cents in Br. Unc. seldom obtainable and command a premium of 50 per cent to 75 per cent over Unc. prices.

Ontario Club Hears Smith

Lloyd Smith was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Waterloo Coin Society, Kitchener, Ontario, with approximately 55 members and guests in attendance.

Smith gave an interesting talk on collecting gold coins, and gave as his reasons for branching out into gold collecting field because of the permanent lustre of gold pieces, permanent value of gold, and the fact that fewer counterfeits are made of gold than in other currency.

This particular talk by Smith will be added to the "speakers' circuit" so that other coin clubs in the community will be able to enjoy such an educational talk. Gold pieces on display included coins from 22 different countries.

Rod Rekofski also gave a brief talk to the group on the formation of the new Ontario Numismatic Association.

The Official Augustus Saint-Gaudens COMMEMORATIVE MEDAL

OBVERSE: COLUMBUS

The first medal in the beautiful COIN MEDALS series. Other medals to follow, about three each year, will commemorate Victor Brenner, Charles Barber, George Morgan, and other famous makers familiar to all numismatists.

Illustrated above, the Saint-Gaudens medal shows on the obverse Saint-Gaudens' finest work in medallics, his Discovery of America. On the reverse, are shown his studio home in Cornish, New Hampshire, and his finest work in coins, the Roman Date Double Eagle. The coin is artistically presented as a setting sun over the house, symbolizing the decease of the great sculptor in the same year he designed the coin. This medal is issued with the approval of the Trustees of Saint-Gaudens Memorial.

REVERSE: SAINT-GAUDENS

COIN MEDALS, in the Saint-Gaudens medal, brings to the collector these firsts in medallics.

First, in honoring and commemorating famous coin designers. Thus, this series of medals will have lasting and growing interest among coin collectors.

First, with a new concept in designing. COIN MEDALS are designed by a numismatist with many years of experience in collecting and dealing in coins, and who feels he knows what other collectors desire in a medal. This medal shows what Saint-Gaudens did in coins and medallics, whereas the old way of designing would show only his bust.

First, with high relief on both the obverse and reverse. The ordinary medal is flat on the reverse. On a king-size medal such as the Saint-Gaudens, this "double-relief" requires the use of tremendous presses to bring out the relief on both sides.

All the sculpture and die-work on the Saint-Gaudens medal was done by Robert Stephan Schabel, and the beautiful work on this medal proves he is one of the few really top artists in medallics. Mr. Schabel is now working on the Victor Brenner medal.

The Metal Arts Company of Rochester, New York, is producing COIN MEDALS for us, and we recommend this firm to any individual or group desiring to issue anything from a token to the finest medal.

PRICES:

The Saint-Gaudens Bronze Medal, in box with descriptive folder, $5.50, or two for $10.00
Two medals afford a simultaneous view of the obverse and reverse, with appropriate holders to be offered later.
The Saint-Gaudens Silver Medal, in velvet lined case with descriptive folder $30.00

The Saint-Gaudens medal is issued in bronze and silver, and is of large 3 inch diameter, as all COIN MEDALS to follow. The bronze weighs about 7 ounces, and the silver, being of the same thickness, weighs about 8 ounces. The silver medals are serially numbered on the edge, with a total issue of not over 5000. All silver COIN MEDALS are limited to the same 5000 issue. Purchasers of the Saint-Gaudens are reserved the same serial number in the Brenner and other medals. So when the Saint-Gaudens is sold out, it will be difficult to obtain any of the other silver medals later.

Collectors who have already bought the Saint-Gaudens silver medal, may send payment of $30.00 anytime (or first $10 payment) for the Brenner medal, which will be ready in December. Please mention number of your Saint-Gaudens when you write. This early payment will give us more time to process orders.

You need send only $10.00 to reserve your silver medal, and pay the balance in two monthly payments, and medal will be shipped as soon as all paid. You will receive acknowledgement of the order and serial number of your medal. This payment plan applies to all future silver COIN MEDALS.

Roman Coins Shown In London

The British Museum in London maintains the largest research collection of coins in the world. Conservative estimates place the amount of coins held at 750,000. (See Coin World for June 23, 1961 for story on British Museum).

Dr. J. Walker is the distinguished curator of the section on Coins and Medals, and he heads a staff of 16 numismatic scholars at the Museum.

The Coins and Medals section holds no permanent display, but special exhibitions are held from time to time, particularly in the fields of ancient coins and classical English.

There are, however, permanent exhibits of Roman coins and odd and curious money in the King

Michigan Club Meets

The Sanilac Coin Club, Sandusky, Mich., met recently in the Municipal building to buy, sell and trade coins.

Edward VII Gallery of Antiquities.

About 500 representative Roman coins are contained, from the beginnings of Roman coinage in the fourth century B. C. until the last coins of the Empire were struck in 475 A. D.

Every emperor is represented and many of the gold coins in the exhibit cases are extremely rare.

The collection of odd and curious money is unique. Entire world is represented, and the collection was formed through the efforts of many Museum benefactors who literally scoured the ends of the earth for unusual display items.

Following are some of the more remarkable items contained in the exhibit cases

A huge whale's tooth, about seven inches long and known as "Tambua," used in the Fiji Islands for money.

A copper shield used by all tribes of Indians in the Canadian Northwest and Alaska as a symbol of wealth. The shield was exchanged among chiefs at ceremonial feasts.

Other items include, Indian shell currency of Tennessee, axe blade currency of Mexico, stone ring money of the New Hebrides, iron bar money of Brunel, a bundle of spear heads from the Congo (valued at one chicken), and brass weights from the Ivory Coast used for weighing gold dust.

Few other museums in the world have such a comprehensive display of odd and curious money as does the British Museum.

It also might be well to mention that the British Museum maintains a large exhibit of ancient gold jewelry, adjacent to the Coins and Medals section, and many of these items have definite numismatic interest.

For example, there is a showcase of Greek gold ornaments containing work of goldsmiths executed between 1100 and 600 B. C. We can see that many designs used for these ornaments were later adapted as the central designs for coins. Victory driving the chariot is one of them.

Wealthy Romans often wore rings inset with a gold portrait coin of the particular emperor who happened to be in power at the time.

The British Museum, located on Great Russell Street in the heart of London, is open to the public on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays from 2:30 to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

Although New Zealand's history goes back for several centuries, it has only been during recent years that the country has had her own coinage.

Specifically, New Zealand did not have her own coins until 1933. Gold, silver and bronze coins of gold coins were legal tender in New Zealand until 1935, with Australian silver and bronze in free (though not legal) circulation.

In 1933, New Zealand introduced its own silver coins, and the dominion's bronze coins were first released for circulation in 1939.

All of the country's coins are struck at the Royal Mint in London and each design is distinctive. Her monetary standard is based on the British system of pence, shillings and pounds.

In 1947, cupro-nickel coins were issued in place of silver coins, many of which were withdrawn from circulation as they were received by the banks. During the past 14 years, silver coins have been appearing less and less frequently in circulation.

Coin collectors who met recently in Pequot Lakes, Minn., to form a club have named it the Paul Bunyan Coin Club after the state's legendary hero, and have scheduled their next meeting for Thursday, November 17, according to the new president, Elmer Hardesty.

Area collectors are invited to attend the November session, with the site to be announced by Hardesty who may be contacted at P.O. Box 247, Pequot Lakes.

Afghanistan's five amani piece of 1921 was the largest gold coin struck by that country.

The uncrowned effigy of His Majesty the King with the legend, King George the Sixth," is found on this New Zealand crown obverse. The reverse bears a fern frond between four five-pointed stars representing the constellation of the Southern Cross with the legend, New Zealand Crown. 1949.

Newman Club Guest For Program

Eric P. Newman spoke on some of the sidelights of his recent American Numismatic Association convention 1804 silver dollar speech at the October meeting of the Missouri Numismatic Society of St. Louis.

The St. Louis numismatist said that his decision to discuss the 1804-05 silver dollar problem at the Atlanta A.N.A. convention was prompted by the "exciting and interesting facts that two years of research revealed."

Newman highlighted his St. Louis talk with a showing of large black and white photos of the Zerbe 1804 dollar. He explained how, in his opinion, alterations on both the 1804 and 1805 dollars were accomplished. (See Coin World for October 6, page 12, for full text of Newman's Atlanta address).

Three charter members of the Missouri Numismatic Society were present at this meeting, Arthur Thilking, John Stevenson and Eric P. Newman.

The Missouri Numismatic Society meets on the second Monday of each month at St. Louis' Hotel Claridge beginning at 8 p.m.

Charter Membership Rolls Remain Open

The Riverside Coin Club of Plymouth, Mich., has slated its next meeting for Sunday, November 19, in the American Legion Hall, 888 Sheldon Road, starting at 2:30 p.m., and all area coin collectors are invited to attend, according to secretary Betty Sarver of Northville.

Organized early last summer, the club is still holding open its charter memberships and would like to have a few more before closing date, the secretary reported.

All Because Of George!

South Carolina Junior Has Choice Collection

By Ed Neuce

"It's because of my friend George," reports young Steve Parker of Rock Hill, S. C., in explaining how he happens to have coins in his collection that almost any curator of a museum would like to get his hands on. "George's big machine digs them up when he's laying pipe line overseas and he saves them for me and brings them back to America when he comes home between jobs."

Yes, twelve-year-old Steve keeps quite a bit of change on hand, but he's never tempted to spend it in the juke box or the soft drink machine.

"My coins are old coins and most of them are the wrong size and shape anyway," says the young collector who estimates that some of his coins may have jingled in the pockets of Roman boys back in the days of Julius Caesar.

"George has been bringing me coins for several years now and I guess I've got more than 60 foreign coins now, some of them are pretty old."

Who is George? Well, according to Steve, George Mann is a bronzed, balding man who has spent most of the past 27 years working out of the United States as superintendent of pipe line and pumping station work for a construction company, with most of his time having been spent in the Middle East laying pipe line for foreign oil companies and NATO.

George and his wife, Nannette, and their two children are neighbors of the Parkers.

One day several years ago when George Mann and his family were over at the Parkers, young Steve dumped out his coin collection to show George. George admired them and then he pulled two old Roman coins from his pocket, along with a pre-Phoenician piece of money that he'd dug up when he was laying pipe line in Syria. He gave the coins to Steve as a present and since that time has been adding to Steve's collection.

Steve keeps his money in an old-fashioned leather change purse that is about three inches thick and 10 inches wide. He began his collection with a few pieces his father had collected, including an 1857 half dime that belonged to his grandfather, but now he has quite a collection of all types.

"George brings me a coin from every foreign country he visits and he brings me paper money, too. But I like the metal coins best. When George came home this time he brought me this solid gold piece from Turkey and a coin with a hole in it from Africa."

"I guess I prize these six old Roman coins the most. When the big road machine dug them up, George asked a professor about them. He said that they were mighty old—maybe 2,000 years old."

George Mann left recently for Iran where he will work for the next seven to 10 months. Steve hated to see him go, but he's pretty confident that George won't forget to keep his eyes on the ground for any old coins that may turn up for his young friend.

Two Dixon, Ill., high school boys are hoping to form a coin club, but so far they have not found enough interest among their fellow students to get organized.

Realizing that coin collecting is not limited to any particular age group, the boys would like to know if anyone in the community would be interested in joining them.

Interested persons can address cards or letters to Greg Selgestad and Jim Mumford at 209 E. First street, Dixon.

Ronnie Basham, 4025 Hershberger R., N.W., Roanoke, Va., has been elected president of the newly organized Monroe Coin Club, sponsored by Monroe Junior High School of Roanoke.

Students of the Allderdice High School, Pittsburgh, Pa., have organized a Coin Collectors Club. Meetings are held on Tuesdays with approximately 30 members registered to date. As yet no officers have been named.

John Kealy and William Lamb, both students at Catholic High School, Mt. Carmel, Pa., recently gave a very interesting talk on coins and coin collecting, before the Mt. Carmel Rotary Club at the Elks Home.

Kealy, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Kealy of South Hickory Street, opened the talks with a summary of how he became interested in coins.

Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lamb of North Walnut street, Mt. Carmel, gave an interesting history on coins, starting with the first coin minted in 1793.

The history of coin minting methods in the United States was outlined by the two students. During the talk, the boys presented for viewing their own sizeable coin collections.

In a question and answer period, the boys astounded Rotarians with their knowledge of numismatics.

Junior collector Danny Giles of Fort Wayne, Ind., reports finding a 1909-S VDB while searching through some Lincoln cents recently.

Danny's grandfather, M. Giles of 1212 South Dixie Highway, Hollywood, Fla., operates a coin and stamp shop.

This year's Glenside, Pa., Cheltenham High School club program includes several new activities, including coin collecting.

The coin collecting club is headed by William Trimble, physical education teacher.

Second place went to Robert Klaes, 14, of South Deerfield.

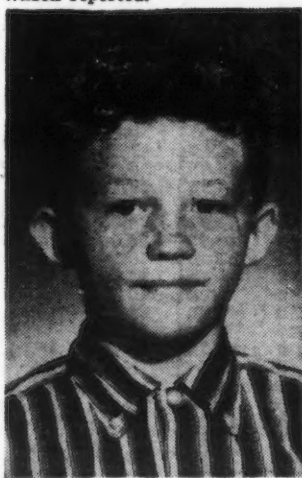

Until next week...hope you all find a very fine 1914-D Lincoln...not altered.

Junior Group Plans Meeting

The first meeting of a proposed Junior Coin Club in Johnson City, Tenn., is set for Saturday, November 18, at 2 p.m., in the Johnson City Recreation building, according to A. Richard Wilson, president of the sponsoring Tri-State Coin Club of the same city.

Notices of the junior group meeting have been sent out through the schools, radio station and the area newspapers.

The adult Tri-State Club is scheduled to hold its own regular November session on Monday evening, November 20, at the same place, starting at 7:30 o'clock. The program is to include slides of the last American Numismatic Association convention in Atlanta, to be shown by Frank Tannewitz, Wilson reported.

Donnie Curtis, 11, of Bellflower, Calif., and a Junior member of the Lakewood Coin Club, recently traded three five dollar gold pieces for a 1909-S VDB Lincoln in fine condition. This makes his Lincoln set complete. Oh, yes, all the gold pieces were given to Donnie as special awards by coin clubs of the area.

Honest Man Gets Salute

"A good friend of numismatists"—This is an apt description of Arthur Barrera, of 120½ N. Nopal, Santa Barbara, who twice has come to the rescue of distressed coin dealers. Both times he returned lost numismatic material worth a considerable amount.

The first time, a year or so ago, a Pasadena dealer, here for a coin convention, lost a cigar box crammed full of material.

Barrera, assistant manager of Benson's Garage, found the coins and returned them. He didn't even bother to find out the name of the dealer or the value of the box.

The second time, just about a week ago, he chanced on a coin box containing valuable Buffalo nickels and other material lost by Harry Kaplun, Santa Barbara coin dealer. He promptly turned it over to police who gave it back to the dealer.

Barrera, father of a 12-year-old daughter, Donna, and a married stepson, James Cordero, was surprised at the question when asked why he turned in the material both times, when he could have kept it.

"They didn't belong to me. Why should I keep something that belongs to someone else?"

In view of the constant run of stories concerning dishonesty and thieves, it is mighty good to run into an honest man, Kaplun says. "It kind of reinforces your faith in human nature."

Coin Club Conducts Fall Coin Day Show

The Tri-Cities Coin Club, Moline, Ill., held a Fall Coin Day recently in the Moline Legion Building.

A 150 lot auction of choice material was a highlight of the day.

London Banking Institute Has Paper Money, Tokens

The Institute of Bankers at 10 Lombard Street in the center of London's banking district, and just across the avenue from the Bank of England, holds one of that country's largest collections of paper money and English tokens.

"While we have an extensive county-by-county collections of English private banknotes and tokens," explained Peter Spiro, Institute Librarian to a Coin World reporter, "we don't have a permanent exhibit set up at this time, although one is definitely in the planning stages."

The paper money collection contains some of the earliest Chinese notes of the 14th century, Bank of England notes, and miscellaneous foreign paper money, in addition to the English private issues.

"While the collection was originally intended for the use of bankers," commented Spiro, "we've had a good many inquiries from numismatists recently, and this is an indication to me that collectors today are greatly interested in paper money."

Spiro and his staff are planning to locate the permanent exhibition in the library and reading room of the Institute, although it will be some time before the opening.

In the meantime, bankers and serious numismatic scholars are invited to use the collection. However, appointments must always be made in advance for this purpose.

The Institute's holdings are particularly significant because they to a great degree complement the Bank of England's paper money collection. The Bank retains only its own notes, and not those of the old English private banks or foreign paper money.

Prague Mint Now Making Cuban Money

Cuba's latest issues of both coins and paper money have been made in Prague, Czechoslovakia, a further indication of the island's close ties with the Communist world.

A total of 65 million cupro-nickel five-centavo pieces of the same design as the issue of 1946, but dated 1961, were struck at the Prague Mint, reports T. Lismore in an article Notes on Cuban Currency in Spink & Son Ltd.'s monthly Numismatic Circular for October.

In addition, one hundred million one-centavo pieces of the same design as the Star type of 1946 but dated 1961 were also struck at Prague, Lismore wrote.

The new paper currency, issued officially by the Cuban government on August 5, was printed wholly in Prague. New bills come in five denominations, one five, 10, 50 and 100 peso bills.

Fidel Castro's new currency features Cuban heroes and designs connected with 1958 revolution that overthrew dictator Fulgencio Batista's government—Castro's march into Havana, invasion of Cuba by his troops and the bearded leader speaking at a huge rally.

(See Coin World story on the new Cuban currency, August 25, 1961, p. 1).

Gold Coins Premium In Western Europe

Gold coins are becoming so popular in parts of western Europe for investment and as gifts there is now an actual shortage of gold coins in mint condition, according to the Burroughs Clearing House, a Detroit publication. New coins are being issued for a variety of purposes and banks in Western Germany, Austria and Italy are promoting their sale.

Swiss bank officials, who traditionally handle more gold coins than those of any other country, report extreme shortages of gold coins for collectors.

Not long ago, hundreds of pounds of gold coins were handled daily by Swiss Bank Corporation at Zurich and by other Swiss banks. This year the supply has dried up and is coming in to the banks in small amounts.

Reasons given include: unsettled world conditions, prosperity in much of Western Europe reviving the collection of coins and their use as gifts, and the amounts now stored in private collections.

Swiss banks have staffs at their main branches whose only job is buying and selling gold bullion and coins, sorting coins which can be sold to collectors, and handling the gold business from all of the world.

Promotion of gold coins by banks for gifts and for collections ranges from brochures listing and illustrating old gold coins and their current market prices to traffic-stopping window displays. The Commerzbank at its main branch on the Königsallee in Düsseldorf and at its Kaiserstrasse branch in Frankfurt, Western Germany, has large revolving circular discs in its windows. A large magnifying glass shows each of 14 gold coins from different countries as the disc slowly revolves. There are always people watching the sign and the coins as they come around to the magnifying glass.

In Roman banks, Numismatica Italiana promotes the sale of gold coins with lavishly illustrated catalogs. This year Italy issued a series of six gold coins in weights from seven to 105 grams for the centenary of Italian unification. The Milan branch of Numismatica Italiana released a series of five coins in weight from seven to 70 grams showing sports for Italy's century as a unified nation.

The catalog features not only coins of Italy but also of Greece, Monaco, Bavaria, Venezuela, and coins issued specially for the reigning queens of Europe, and for World War II personalities of both the Allies and the German-Italian-Japanese group of countries. The coins are quoted singly and in gift boxes.

La Banque Cantonale Vaudoise in Lausanne, Switzerland, in a colorful brochure on gifts available at the bank, includes gold coins from a number of countries, even the United States.

Headquarters for "the old reliable" Nick Bell, sole owner.

This coin cabinet in the Austrian National Museum belonged to Arch-Duke Ferdinand of Tyrol (1529-1595) which was made from wood. It was richly painted with multicolor ornaments on black

Professor Dr. Eduard Holzmaier (left) demonstrates to Admiral O. H. Dodson the "alchemist's medal" which was presented to Emperor Leopold I in 1677. The medal weighs 15 pounds of solid silver and was specifically treated by an alchi-mist with a nitric acid which was supposed to turn silver into gold. The medal shows portraits of the emperor and his wife depicted with ancestors.

Invasion Money Studied

The riddle behind the Japanese currency supposedly to be used during the invasion and occupation of the United States during World War II hasn't been solved yet.

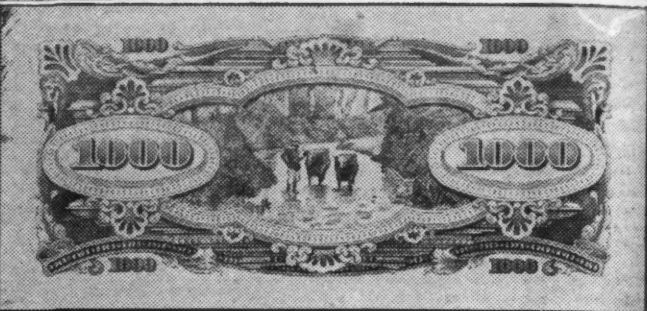

But the bills are interesting because they are the only Japanese notes which read "The Japanese Government Promises to Pay The Bearer on Demand" (similar to a statement appearing on U. S. bills).

Further, the values in the set of nine bills are given in denominations of American money—one, five, 10 and 50 cents, and one, five, 10, 100, and 1,000 dollars. Norman Schultz, numismatist of Salt Lake City, Utah, obtained a number of sets from Malaya and believes that they were later used there since the bills are overprinted with an "M."

However, the notes are interesting and could well be an indication that the Japanese were planning the war well in advance, even to the point of establishing a currency for the United States, if they happened to get that far.

VISUAL GRADERS

THIS CHRISTMAS!

The Visual Grader was placed on the market a year ago and more than 140,000 have been sold. One set was returned from the first 100,000 graders sold. With this record of satisfied customers, I placed a double your money back guarantee on the set. More than 40,000 have been sold under this guarantee without a set returned! This is proof that honesty among coin collectors is exceeded by no other group. This might also be considered a strong indication they were satisfied with the graders.

This satisfaction is not difficult to understand if you know the facts about the grader. It is not my grade you are paying to see but an exact photographic reproduction of accurately graded coins which were purchased from dealers with combined experience of more than 300 years in grading. This set would cost about $1,000 to produce individually but you pay only a fraction of this.

Get them from your dealer or order directly from the factory.

Austrian Coins Pleasing Examples Of Minting Art

By Oscar H. Dodson
Director, Money Museum
National Bank of Detroit

Prolific and diversified—rich and artistic extending over a thousand years—these are mild terms to describe the fantastic coinage of Austria.

As early as 900 A. D. a crude silver denarius was in use among traders on the banks of the Danube. The sketchy symbols and portraits of these early coins gave way to inscribed pieces of improved design with the vigorous advances in art during the early Renaissance. In the year 1438 the magnificent Hapsburg Dynasty, rulers of the Holy Roman Empire, selected Vienna as their permanent capital. From the mint of Vienna the Hapsburgs issued Imperial coins in gold, silver, and copper down to the death of Emperor Francis Joseph in 1916.

In addition to the dollar size silver thaler and ten denominations of minor coins a limited number of attractive double and multiple thalers were also struck. Austrian numismatics was further enriched by a wide variety of coins issued by archdukes and dukes, by provinces and dependencies.

Canadian Firm Has Coin Maps

Coin Map Cards, designed for the Canadian large cents of George V, and one for a starter set of 30 different Canadian small cents, are feature items handled by the Regency Coin and Stamp Co. Ltd. of Winnipeg, Canada.

Somer James, president of the Canadian firm, reports that the cent map cards have been available for over a year and have sold mostly in Canada. It is reported to be a very popular item in that country.

The cards are now available to collectors everywhere. Additional information may be obtained by writing Regency at 157 Rupert avenue, Winnipeg 2, Canada.

The best known of all Austrian coins, the "everlasting" thaler of Maria Theresa, first appeared in 1780. Although this year marked the unhappy Queen's death, her silver thaler simply refused to die. Even today the coin in original design is in demand in areas bordering the Red Sea; even today the coin is produced, with the date 1780, in the mint in Vienna.

Many Austrian coins are pleasing examples of Fine Art. Coins of unusual artistic merit are sharply and beautifully reproduced in the work Munzkunst In Osterreich (Coin Art in Austria) published in 1948 by the distinguished Austrian numismatist, University Professor, Dr. Eduard Holzmaier, Director of the Austrian National Numismatic Collection.

Under the Republic, Austria has continued the long tradition of producing elegant coins, with the schilling as the new monetary unit.

Austria is noted for its cheerful and gracious people, for breathtaking scenery, for Viennese coffee crowned with whipped cream; but for the numismatist a visit to the National Collection in the Austrian National Museum of Arts in Vienna is the most memorable of all experiences. On display are the numismatic and medallion treasures of centuries. On your next trip, don't miss Vienna!

Hiker Finds English Coin

It is not unusual to find a cent, but William W. Milligan of Monongahela, Pa., was surprised when the coin he found recently while walking was an English five-penny coin dated 1870.

The coin, smaller than a dime, bears a likeness of Queen Victoria and is made of nickel.

Hobby Shop Opens In Ohio

A new hobby shop, specializing in coins, has been opened at 216 E. 5th street, Urichsville, Ohio, operated by Rosey Croniser.

The Croniser business was formerly conducted from the owner's residence, and was at that time known as C.O.I.N.S. Company. In addition to selling coins, and coin supplies, the Hobby Shop will handle other hobby supplies.

Serving as counselor for Urichsville's Boy Scouts, Rosey Croniser has also served as secretary for the Tuscarawas County Coin Club.

A feature item of the new shop is a wooden nickel designed by the owner. The central figure is of an area monument to the memory of 90 Christian Indians who were victims of a massacre.

Other features of the wooden nickel include a wedge of cheese representing the National Swiss Festival held each year at Sugar Creek, Ohio; a piece of pipe representing the National Clay Center of the World which is Urichsville; a log cabin which represents the restored Shoenbrunn, Ohio, Village; and an arrow head representing the Indian lore of Tuscarawas County.

Interested persons may obtain additional information by writing Box 287, Urichsville.

U. S. and CANADIAN MAIL BID SALE

CLOSING DATE NOVEMBER 25, 1961

There's something for almost everybody in this one, so look it over carefully. This is the first bid sale I have conducted in this paper, but I have accumulated a too miscellaneous batch of coins to advertise effectively in any other way. By the way, I want to sell these coins, so don't be shy with the bids. Only the absolutely ridiculous bids will be refused. As most bidders know, however, the good coins bring good prices, and if you really want something, I suggest you bid generously. Bid confidently, absolute satisfaction guaranteed. If you don't agree on the grading of any coin, just ship it back for an immediate refund. All lots shipped postpaid. Your bid is the most you will have to pay. Invoices sent out immediately after closing date, coins shipped on receipt of payment. California bidders subject to 4% sales tax.

Government Early Collector

The government of Sweden began acquiring medieval coins nearly 400 years ago as historical evidence to demonstrate Sweden's right to use the three crowns coat-of-arms as a national emblem.

Excavations on a systematic basis were made beginning in the 17th century and thousands of coins were discovered in this way, along with countless antiquities.

All of these finds were eventually placed in the State Historical Museum, at Stockholm, which was opened to the public in 1847. The Royal Cabinet of Coins and Coins are displayed chronologically on panels, and texts and drawings give information about prices and wages, rates of exchange etc. in the period concerned.

The whole range of Swedish bank notes — among them the oldest banknotes of Europe, dating from 1661 — can also be studied here.

Collection of medals is in part arranged as a series illustrating Swedish history. In addition, however, examples of medallic art in other countries from the 15th century to modern times are shown.

Especially worthy of note is the collection of German, English and Arabian coins, treasure - troves from the Viking era.

MENTION "COIN WORLD" IN ANSWERING ANY AD!

Temporary Officers Rule Club Until Next Election

When the Ocean County Coin Club of Tom's River, N. J., holds its next meeting on Thursday, November 16, it will be led by an almost complete set of temporary officers, with only one remaining in his original position.

President Charles Kelsey of Bayville resigned because of pressure of business, and Mrs. Lillian Thropp, vice president, was automatically elevated to the office.

Secretary Lewis Jennison and treasurer J. Riley Hill, both of Tom's River, moved away, and Frank Kessler, Tom's River, and Carl Nelson, Freehold, were appointed to those posts pro tem.

The only officer who was elected last winter who is still in his elected position is James Tanner, Lakehurst, who is sergeant at arms. The current temporary officers will serve until the annual election in January.

Changing its meeting place from Citta's Old Time Tavern, the club is now holding its sessions at the Courthouse Annex in Tom's River, starting at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

At a recent meeting, it was decided to hold a "Swap hour" starting at 7 o'clock on meeting nights. In order to help it operate more efficiently, two co-chairmen were named, Mrs. Carol Hesse, Lavallette, and Andrew Monaghan, Island Heights. They will also plan a series of talks for the benefit of beginning collectors.

LARGE PROFITS EXPECTED OF FOUR CENT ROLLS

The COINVESTOR system indicates these rolls should increase 1300% in next 8 years.

The COINVESTOR Analysis Kit can help you pick out the rolls that will have spectacular growth. There is no need to guess — no need to gamble — no need to rely on rumors, you will know with certainty which rolls will make you the most profit. COINVESTOR was designed for this purpose and it does it well.

The COINVESTOR system performs three separate tasks:

1. The Master Graph, which is the heart of the system, is used to plan your investment program. (It displays the course of the average roll as it progresses thru 28 years of time and value.)

2. The 71 Individual curves, included with each kit, portray the price history of each cent roll, and, when used in conjunction with the Master Graph, enables you to analyze the investment opportunity of each roll.

3. The COINVESTOR observation technique keeps you intimately informed on each roll. It alerts you when a roll moves into the area of good investment. You are able to spot the spectacular roll early.

A list of the 4 rolls mentioned above will be included with each order from this ad. In a recent ad 7 rolls were mentioned which the COINVESTOR system indicated would have good gains. During the month that lapsed from the writing of the ad to the shipping of the orders these seven rolls had increased in value 10%. Time is obviously money — SO

Platinum Once Considered Cheap

Now Termed Most Precious Of All Metals For Coins

By Nick Parker—A.N.A. 39058

When an unknown South American gold miner first produced platinum in 1747, little did he realize that the heavy, white metal he held in his hands would some day be renowned as the heaviest, hardest, and most valuable metal ever used for coinage.

For more than 75 years, the Andes Mountains of South America remained the world's only source of platinum. Spain made good use of her new resource. Nearly one quarter of all platinum coins are Spanish. Spain herself issued 18 different varieties of platinum coins, a record that still stands. It was not until 1904 that Spain issued her last platinum coin. And in 1930, Venezuela became the only former Spanish possession to strike a coin in platinum after having gained independence. This was a 100 Bolivar piece bearing the facing bust of Dictator Gomez.

In 1765, the Brazilian 6400 reis coin became the only platinum piece ever issued by a Portuguese country.

In 1804 France got into the act. It was then that a platinum Medal was struck to commemorate the building of the mint. Although a platinum Essai had been struck in 1801, it was the 1804 Medal that sparked the striking of other French commemorative medals in platinum through the year 1822. Later, in 1849, the Second Republic struck a 20 Franc piece in platinum.

This led to the 1858 authorization by Napoleon III for a nine year striking of platinum 20 Franc pieces. In 1861, he also authorized a platinum striking of the famous Taler struck in Korn with Mayence. There also exists a unique specimen of a platinum 10 Franc piece dated 1862-BB. In 1876, the Third Republic struck the last platinum specimen of a 20 Franc piece. It was not until 1890 that French platinum coinage resumed with the striking of a nickel project coin in platinum, and a 10 Centime piece also dated 1891. France ceased platinum coinage with the striking of a Bompas 5 Centime necessity coin of 1917 in platinum.

In 1807, George III authorized Great Britain to strike a platinum penny and a platinum shilling sixpence token in 1812. It was in 1861 that Queen Victoria reauthorized platinum coinage for England and a few British Colonies. This coinage stopped with the Jubilee issues of 1887.

Contrary to common belief, the United States played a very important part in early platinum coinage. It all began with the striking of three platinum specimens of the 1814 half dollar. Despite the date, a letter now in National Archives indicates that these pieces were struck somewhere around the year 1840. From 1844 to 1879, when platinum was worth less than silver, many counterfeiters found it quite profitable to strike platinum specimens of five and ten dollar gold pieces and, by plating with gold, circulate them as gold coins.

In 1881, a platinum medal was struck to commemorate the International Cotton Exposition in Atlanta, Georgia. In 1928, a Hoover inaugural medal was struck in platinum. In 1932, four platinum medals were struck to commemorate the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birth. Three of these were half dollar sized. One, however, was struck from a solid pound of platinum. The latter was given to Herbert Hoover, who was President at the time. He now uses it as a paper weight. Platinum medals were also struck for the New York World's Fair of 1939. More recently, a few American medalists have begun striking platinum medals.

In 1824, platinum was first produced from the Ural Mountains of Russia. Nicholas I, soon to become Czar, took an interest in this discovery, and, in 1826, shortly after his coronation, he authorized the unique striking of a platinum half Rouble. The success of this led to the striking of his coronation jetons and medals in Platinum. He then authorized the platinum striking of 3, 6, and 12 Rouble coins in 1828, 1829 and 1830, respectively. These are the only examples history affords us of platinum coins being officially struck for circulation.

Unfortunately, as platinum reduced in value, the Russian public showed hostility toward these coins and forced their discontinuance in 1845. Despite the failure of his idea, Nicholas I will always be remembered as the world's first platinum collector, for he was an avid numismatist who, obviously, specialized in platinum.

In 1826, the Netherlands struck a 5 Guilder platinum piece at Brussels. This unique coin was the only Dutch platinum piece ever struck. Many other countries stopped after one attempt at platinum coinage. The 1914 Austrian Krone and 1868 Hungarian 4 Kreuzer piece were among these. The 1830 Frederick D'Or of Denmark failed as did the Italian 20 Lire coin dated 1863. The undated 20 Mark piece of Saxony Meiningen and 1942 Egyptian 2 Piastre pieces were also the only platinum issues of their respective countries. We will probably never know why these countries rejected platinum coinage after one attempt.

Unlike the aforementioned countries, Bavaria struck several platinum pieces. Bavarian platinum coinage began in 1843 with platinum striking of a five Taler and undated inauguration Ducat of Maximilian Joseph. In 1913, Bavaria struck 2 specimens each of the 2, 5, and 20 Mark platinum patterns, each bearing a large bust of Louis III on the obverse and a styled eagle on the reverses of the 2 and 5 Mark coins. The 20 Mark piece is unique. Finally, in 1925, Bavaria issued its last platinum pieces as an independent nation. These were 3 and 5 Mark patterns, each bearing a Madonna and Child.

Although it started twenty years later, Prussian platinum coinage eventually surpassed that of Bavaria. The platinum coinage of Prussia began with the 1868 6 Kreuzer piece. Later, in 1876 and 1877, 50 Pfennig pieces were struck in platinum. Three different platinum varieties of the 50 Pfennig piece were struck in 1908 along with one semi-unique variety of the 25 Pfennig piece. In 1913, 2 specimens each were struck of the 2 and 5 Mark platinum patterns. Although entirely different in appearance, they both bear a bust of William II on the obverse and a styled eagle, respectively, identical to the Bavarian ones, on the reverse.

In 1883, Hawaii struck a unique platinum specimen of the 1/2 dollar. This was followed by two platinum specimens each of the 1/4 and 1/2 Dollar in 1884.

In 1895, Madagascar struck a unique Crown, Crum, and Kirobo, all in platinum.

In 1925, Germany began her platinum coinage, which lasted until 1932.

In 1928, Poland struck platinum specimens of the 2 and 5 Zloty pieces, both bearing Madonnas.

The United Nations struck platinum specimens of the Essai Ducaton and Roosevelt Commemorative in 1946. These pieces were an unsuccessful attempt at monetary unity. It was thought that monetary unity would be a big step toward world peace. Both

Famous Numismatic Collection Shown For First Time In Rome

The famous numismatic collection of King Victor Emmanuel III (1869-1947) of Italy was shown publicly for the first time in conjunction with the sessions of the International Numismatic Congress held in Rome in mid-September, reports Hans Schulman, Coin World's roving columnist.

An exhibition of the Italian monarch's coins was staged at Rome's Palazzo Barberini, the headquarters of the "Istituto Italiano di Numismatica," the Italian Institute of Numismatics.

Victor Emmanuel, who succeeded to the throne in 1900, held a life-long interest in numismatics and became an Honorary Fellow of the American Numismatic Society in 1901.

The numismatist-monarch bequeathed his royal collection to the Italian people in 1946, just before he went into exile in Egypt a year before his death. In making the bequest the king said, "I bequeath my coin collection, which has been the greatest passion of my life, to the Italian people."

Estimated to have a value of nearly seven million dollars, the collection contains 120,000 coins and medals of all periods of history.

The collection embraces not only the finest assemblage of Italian coins in the world, but is also particularly strong in the coins of medieval and renaissance Europe.

During World War II, the king had his collection transferred from the Quirinal palace to his summer residence in Rome. After the occupation of the Italian capital by the Germans the collection was dispatched to the summer residence of the Savoy in the northern part of Italy—and probably was even stored for a short time in Germany.

Before the end of the war, however, the collection was placed under the official Italian government supervision at Cuono (in Italy's north Piedmont) and was subsequently placed in an underground palace vault at Bozen.

Eventually, the coins and medals were sent back to Rome where they were stored in the cellars of the Quirinal palace. Finally, the great King Victor Emmanuel collection was placed on permanent exhibition at the Palazzo Barberini during the gathering of the International Numismatic Congress.

Numismatists from the world over are now invited to view the coins and medals which were the "passion" of a ruling monarch's entire life.

Netherlands...

Sumatra, Borneo, Celebes (N.B. these islands now comprise the independent state of Indonesia), distinguished their coins from the motherland with the initials "V.C.C.", replaced in about 1800 by the name "Netherlands Indies".

In general, the coins for the Belgian Congo are hardly distinguishable from those in Belgium proper. Certain minor exceptions are to be found in details such as the coat of arms, and an elephant instead of the monarch, for a special issue.

The United States has honored Dutch colonial achievements in such commemorative issues as Huguenot — Walloon Tercentenary; 1935, Hudson—New York Sesquicentennial; and 1936, Long Island Tercentenary.

The Union of South Africa, in 1952, issued a commemorative crown honoring the Dutch colonizers in South Africa, the Boers, the first settlers in that region.

Since receiving its independence in 1949, Indonesia has issued five coins, 1, 5, 10, and 50 sen pieces, which replace the former Dutch circulations.

This brief prospectus has been designed to show the relationship between the development of coins and the growth of a nation. The various historic milestones are in every case reflected in a particular coin or series of coins; when times were especially pressing, unusual specimens resulted, such as the unique laminated paper coins of Leyden. Conversely, when times were prosperous, more denominations were put in circulation in order to take care of the finer shades of commercial life. It is extremely significant that such a tiny area as the Lowlands should be so rich in history—lore, and at the same time occupy such a prominent position in the field of Numismatics.

Coins From England

Prior to 1908, all coins of Canada were minted in England.

Goodson Selected Chairman

Richard P. Goodson, president of the Numismatic Association of Southern California, has been named to serve as general chairman for the "Lucky Seventh" convention of that group on February 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1962, at the Hotel Statler, Los Angeles, according to an announcement by Carolyn Olson, corresponding secretary.

Bourse chairman C. A. Dunbar,

937 South LaBrea avenue, Inglewood, Calif., advises that bourse space will be limited and requests that dealers make early reservations. Last year, Dunbar said, many dealers were disappointed and turned away because they were slow in making reservations.

Paul Newell, 18004 Duncan street, Reseda, Calif., has been elected display chairman, and persons planning to exhibit coins at the four day affair should contact him at the address above.

The bourse will be limited to 80 dealers at $75 for each table, and only one table for each dealer will be available. Only one advertised dealership will be represented at each table, and no floor dealings will be permitted, the general chairman said.

President Goodson, 9400 National Boulevard, Los Angeles 34, states that all other chairmen have been appointed and functioning well. In his opinion "this will be the outstanding convention of 1962."

Additional information may be obtained by contacting any of the officers of the N.A.S.C. "Lucky Seventh."

Cresswell Announces New Irish Medal Publication

By Gary C. Krug
La Grange Park, Ill.

Oliver D. Cresswell, of Belfast, Ireland, has just announced his new publication "Irish Medals". The work is being issued in the form of over two hundred duplicated pages, in a folder, with an ample margin left so that subscribers can have them bound to their own requirements.

As only a limited number of copies will be prepared, they will be available only to those who order a copy in advance. The price is 1 Pound, 15 Shillings, or for U.S. and Canadian subscribers, $5. A reservation for this publication should be sent to Oliver D. Cresswell, 54 Rosscoble Park, Belfast 14, N. Ireland.

The publication will be divided into two main sections, in addition to appendices. Section one will include Loyal Association Medals, Medals of the Irish Volunteers, and the Irish Militia and Regimental Medals. Section two will be on war medals.

The Loyal Association Medals are of great interest, as they are among the earliest of all medals. The first listed is 1755 and they illustrate an interesting point in the development of modern Ireland.

Medals of the Irish Volunteers cover the period 1780 to 1820. They were the forerunners of the Local Defence Corps and many interesting names of the period occur including Napper Tandy, who at one stage of his career was the commandant of the Liberty Rangers Artillery of Dublin. There are over 800 units listed in the book by counties giving in each case the date of formation. Over 280 medals are described, many for the first time. It has been the author's experience that people living in the districts have never heard of these units. Some of these deserve to be rescued from oblivion for their names alone, such as the Iffa and Offa Rangers or the Decies Without Drum Volunteers; others should be remembered for the artistry of their individually engraved medals. These latter form a lasting tribute to the craftsmanship of the Irish silversmiths.

The Irish Militia and Regimental Medals are the pioneer medals of the British Army, and are listed and described in detail for the first time. These medals are of the highest rarity and as in the case of the Volunteer Medals, their present location is listed where known.

In the section devoted to War Medals, there is a listing of the battles fought by each regiment and the medals and bars awarded for their service. In many cases, a regiment was represented by but one man, and here his name is recorded. Also to be found are accurate figures of the numbers of each bar gained by each regiment and where the number does not greatly exceed 100, the names of the recipients are recorded. In addition, foreign awards for the Crimea are listed in detail and casualties tabulated, while officer casualties are named. The Crimean section lists those who took part in both the Light and Heavy Brigade charges at Balaklava and in the Indian Mutiny section will be found the names of the Irish soldiers who perished at Cawnpore.

The appendices will list winners of the Victoria Cross and pre-1914 winners of the Distinguished Conduct Medal. Warrant officers who gained the Military Cross are also listed. In the section of Police Medals, the medals of the now disbanded Royal Irish Constabulary are described and in a section on Civil Awards, notes will be found on such diverse topics as the Papal Medal awarded to Irishmen who served against Garibaldi and the Tayleur Fund Medal.

Cresswell goes on to tell of why he had come to write this work: "Ireland was once known as the Island of Saints and Scholars. It is almost forgotten today that Ireland could, if it wished, lay claim to the title of the Island of Soldiers. Famous generals from Wellington to Kitchener and on to Montgomery and Alexander, can be matched by famous regiments now no more, such as the Royal Regiment of Ireland. The 18th Foot, once known as the Devil's Own, and the Dublin Fusiliers, renowned in the Indian Mutiny as the Dirty Shirts, are also among these famous groups. The latter, who displayed at Gallipoli, as at Plassey, the wild joy in battle that made the Irish regiments the "storm-troopers" of the Empire, their exploits range from the Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava over every continent and every war for 300 years.

"The steady advance of the Ulster Division on the Somme drew from a watching war-correspondent the compliment... 'I wish above all else that I were an Ulsterman', while the Connaught Rangers had the proud boast of garrisoning the borders of Canada without losing a single man through desertion. Their deeds range over the military history of the British Empire from the assault on Buenos Ayres in a forgotten incident in the Napoleonic Wars to the defense of Lucknow in the Indian Mutiny. Their record goes on to the Maori Wars in New Zealand and the Relief of Gordon and on through the battlefields of Flanders to Burma and Alamein.

"Their achievements are now recorded on the decaying standards hanging in the cathedrals all over the world or else are to be found between the pages of dusty history books. These achievements should not be forgotten as the men who fought and died in the jungles of Burma or in the Sierra of Spain were our fathers and the nation that forgets its past will never leave anything for its children to remember with pride. It is this proud story of a country old in war that is recorded in this book through the medals our forefathers won.

"In writing this book, I have had to break new ground, as there has been nothing written on the subject before. I have examined the Medal Rolls in the Public Record Office and the figures given can be taken as exact. In preparing the section on the Pioneer Medals of Ireland, I have examined the collections in the public museums and many of these medals are described for the first time in print."

Please note that the copy of "Irish Medals" will be guaranteed to be delivered only to those who do order in advance. When the edition is finally prepared, the subscribers will be advised accordingly and copies will then be forwarded upon receipt of the remittance mentioned at the beginning of this article.

Bank Officials Find More Loot

An additional $1,600 in old currency was found recently at Cambridge, Md., in an abandoned office building where $5,000 had been found just a few days before.

The latest collection was found by a group of officials of a bank that plans to erect a new building on the site. The officials had been looking around after the earlier finds were reported.

Three boys rummaging through dusty newspapers and broken desks in the old building made the original discovery. Officers then joined in the search and uncovered another $3,400.

Platinum . . .

pieces are unique in each of three thicknesses. The thinnest of these is the exact thickness of the silver specimens. The double thick are twice this thickness. The thickest, quadruple thick, is twice as thick as the double thick.

In 1952, the Europa Union struck platinum specimens of the Eisenhower Commemorative and 5 Europlino piece. The 5 Europlino piece is unique in platinum.

Two hundred fourteen years ago, when platinum was first discovered, it was highly prized because it could be produced only in small quantities. Less than a century later, it was so plentiful that many men abandoned their gold mines because they were producing too much platinum. At that time, it was worth less than silver. Today, platinum is worth about three times as much as gold. By the time you read this, its value may have changed again.

The history of platinum, I am sure you will agree, is a fascinating one. I hope I have made it plain that its history is depicted through the coins and medals struck in platinum.

Lincoln Medals Uncovered

During the year 1909, under the mayoralty of George W. McClellan, the city of New York formed a commission to publicize and honor the centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, and Bela Lyon Pratt, who had designed the U.S. $2.50 and $5 Indian head gold pieces, was engaged to design a medal to honor the occasion.

It is believed that four different sizes were struck, all with the same designs both obverse and reverse, and according to Larry and Gladys Hendry of York, Pa., the sizes included a small size, 21mm with ring for ribbon; medium size, 28mm with ring for ribbon; medium large size, 41mm without ring; and large size, 52mm without ring.

"After all these years," the Hendry report advises, "and under circumstances that sound like fiction, we have obtained what we feel to be the remainder of these medals. A pitifully small quantity of the small, medium and large sizes are in our possession."

These medals are being offered at $3 for the small size, $5 for the medium size, and $15 for the large size. The medium large size is not available. Sizes one and two are available for $7.50 a pair.

Inquiries should be addressed to Larry and Gladys Hendry, 38 S. George street, York, Pa.

Coin Find On Hanford Project

Fred Kuhs of Fresno, Calif., recently found a two-cent piece while working at his job as superintendent of the telephone company addition construction job in Hanford, Calif.

Kuhs reported that the coin's value was not enough to cause him to leave his job, but said that the coin may be worth up to $150.

Lincoln medal find . . .

The Lincoln Centenary Medal issued in 1909 by the city of New York were packaged in an envelope such as the one shown above.

California Merchants Redeem Scarce Coins

Merchants at the Antioch Shopping Center, Stockton, Calif., recently sponsored a sale and accepted old coins at their value for merchandise.

It was reported that a 1796 quarter dollar was valued $1,000 worth of food, hair tonic, or whatever.

Pakistan Changes To Decimal Coinage System

Pakistan adopted the decimal coinage on January 1, 1951, but retained the existing unit of currency, "rupee," without any change in its name and value. It has, however, been divided into hundred units with the lowest unit named "paise."

Following are the denominations of the new decimal coins:
One rupee, 100 paise; 1/2 rupee, 50 paise; 1/4 rupee, 25 paise; 1/10 rupee, 10 paise; 1/20 rupee, five paise; 1/100 rupee, one paise.

For the present only new coins of ten paise, five paise and one paise have been minted and put into circulation. The old coins of all denominations have been allowed to remain legal tender until they are replaced by new coins. Replacement of existing half rupee and quarter rupee coins which are equivalent to 50 paise and 25 paise respectively under the decimal system will be effected gradually.

Total rupee coin in circulation amounted to Rs. 4.27 crores as on the June 30 as against Rs. 4.77 crores a year ago. One rupee notes in circulation as on the June 30 amounted to Rs. 15.76 crores as against Rs. 14.68 crores in the previous year. The circulation of subsidiary coin (Coin of denominations lower than rupee one) amounted to Rs. 11.66 crores as on the June 30 as against Rs. 11.29 crores on the June 30, 1960 (1 crore is equal to ten million).

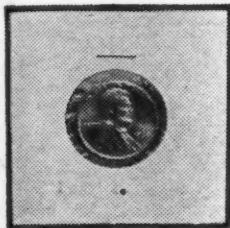

The 10 paise coin is of 12 scallopes with a wavy edge and unmilled rim. It bears in the center of the obverse face a monogram in Urdu script comprising the words, "hukumat - e - Pakistan," surmounted by a waxing crescent moon and five pointed star. Around the major upper portion of the periphery and partially encircling the central design are the words in English, "Government of Pakistan."

The coin bears in the center of the reverse the Urdu numerals signifying "ten," encircled by the value of the coin inscribed in Bengali, Urdu and Roman scripts. The whole is encircled by a wreath of stylized leaves horizontally divided at the center by the year of issue of the coin in Arabic numerals.

Reverse of the five paise bears a river boat in full sail with the Urdu numeral "five" centrally superimposed on the sail; the one paise carries the Urdu numeral "one" on the reverse and on either side of Bengali script are two upright ears of wheat with their awns spreading upwards partially through the Roman and Urdu scripts.

Standard weights include 10 paise, five grammes, five paise, three grammes and one paise, 1.5 grammes.

Official Commemorative Medal of the Centenary

Abraham Lincoln

12th FEBRUARY 1909

Issued under the authority of the LINCOLN CENTENARY COMMITTEE of the
CITY OF NEW YORK

George W. McClellan
MAYOR

"DIFFERENT"

"COLLECTABLE"

The illustration above pictures the original envelope the SMALL size medal came in, in 1909. One of these original envelopes will be given with every order of 2 or more medals, as long as our supply lasts.

During the year of 1909, under the mayoralty of George W. McClellan, the city of New York formed a commission to publicize and honor the Centenary of the birth of

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

BELA LYON PRATT who had designed our $2.50 and $5 Indian Head Gold pieces was engaged to design a fitting medal to honor the occasion. — To the best of our knowledge four (4) different sizes were struck, all with the same designs both obverse and reverse. We list them as follows:

- #1 SMALL SIZE — 21 mm with ring and ribbon
- #2 MEDIUM SIZE — 28 mm with ring and ribbon
- #3 MEDIUM LARGE SIZE — 41 mm without ring
- #4 LARGE SIZE — 52 mm without ring

All medals are in bronze and thickness is appropriate to size and diameter.

After all these years and under circumstances that sound like fiction, we have obtained what we feel to be the remainder of these medals. A pitifully small quantity was found of the SMALL, MEDIUM and LARGE sizes, very small when considering the large number being struck today to honor and commemorate today's events.

WE OFFER THESE VERY BEAUTIFUL MEDALS OF YESTERYEAR TO THE COLLECTORS OF TODAY AT THE FOLLOWING PRICES:

- #1 SMALL SIZE $3.00
- #2 MEDIUM SIZE $5.00
- Both No. 1 and No. 2 $7.50
- #4 LARGE SIZE $15.00

Please note that we are not offering the No. 3 Medal. We tell you about it because we know it exists. On the large medal No. 4 we have less than 100 pieces, to be exact just 72 pieces. It goes without saying that we expect this LARGE No. 4 size medal to be sold out immediately.

All orders for any medals will be filled, as long as our stock lasts, not in order of receipt but in order of the hour and date of postmark of the order.
IMMEDIATE RETURNS OR REFUNDS if we are unable to fill all or part of your order.

Money orders and certified checks and your order will be shipped immediately. Personal checks and your order will be held until check clears your bank. Pennsylvania residents are subject to the 4% sales tax.

REMEMBER This Is An OPPORTUNITY OF A HALF CENTURY And When These Are Gone There Ain't No More.

Basic Knowledge Series - Number Three

Roosevelt Dime Study Easiest For Beginner

By Ed Neuce

Today's column, written expressly for coin collecting beginners, will cover basic steps necessary to forming a collection and will start with the popular Roosevelt dime series which is the least difficult to master.

The Roosevelt dime was designed by John R. Sinnock. His initials "JS" appear on the obverse (Front) of this coin which bears a portrait of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The initials of Sinnock can be located to the left of the date beneath the neck of Roosevelt.

Mint marks on the Roosevelt dime series will be found on the reverse side near the bottom of the Liberty torch and to the left of this torch. Surrounding the torch are laurel and oak sprays.

Roosevelt dimes bearing the Mint mark "D" were struck at the Denver branch of the U.S. Mint. If the coin has an "S" beside the torch handle, it is a product of the San Francisco branch, and if no mint mark is found it was struck at the main Mint at Philadelphia which with the exception of the war-time nickel does not use a mark of identification.

Since the San Francisco Mint branch ceased operation in 1955, the only mint mark on the Roosevelt dime after 1955 will be the "D" of Denver.

The beginner should experience little difficulty assembling the Roosevelt dime set as all varieties are still in circulation. A few are getting scarce but with a little patience they can be found.

The scarce Roosevelts include the 1949-S with a mintage of 13,510,000; the 1950-S with a mintage of 20,440,000; and the 1951-S with a mintage of 31,630,000.

Several later dates have a low mintage number but are plentiful with the exception of the 1955-D and the 1955 plain. Only 12,823,381 struck at the Philadelphia Mint during 1955, and at Denver only 13,959,000 were struck.

The beginner should now go to his coin supply dealer and purchase a folder to hold Roosevelt dimes. These usually sell at 35-cents each unless one wants a folder with plastic slides. The plastic slide holders cost considerably more. If no dealer is available, these folders can be purchased by mail from any of many dealers advertising in this newspaper.

Examining the folder, we find an indented circle for each year and mint mark of the Roosevelt series. Beneath this indented circle we also find valuable information on the number of coins minted at each mint. Each circle is plainly marked as to what mint mark should be put there.

Now, we begin to assemble our collection:

The easiest and least expensive way to complete the Roosevelt series is by going through pocket change and by going through rolls obtained from your bank or grocer. The latter two require an initial investment of $5 because each complete roll contains 50 dimes.

Most bank tellers are either coin collectors or familiar enough with the hobby to lend valuable assistance to the beginner. When approaching the teller for a roll (or rolls) of coins, explain to him that you are just beginning to collect coins and would appreciate obtaining coins that have not been searched through by other collectors.

Although the above request would appear to be out of line, actually, it is not, due to the fact that a majority of collectors mark coin wrappers before returning looked-through rolls to the bank. Most bank employees are acquainted with this practice and are usually eager to be of assistance to the new collector.

Naturally, you will find exceptions to this rule. In such an event, remember on your next visit to the bank to select another teller. At the same time, remember that the bank teller has a job to do and cannot devote all his time to coin collectors.

The bank is not the only good source of supply, either. Remember the corner grocery, service stations, and friends who will probably be happy to assist you by saving their change for occasional checking.

The number of rolls a beginner should purchase depends, quite naturally, upon the size of his pocketbook.

Now, we have some coins for checking; we have the folders to put them in, and we have lined up a source of supply.

With the equipment now on hand...we are ready to begin coin collecting in earnest.

Spreading our dimes out on a table, protected by a soft cloth between coins and table top, our first job is to separate Roosevelt dimes from Mercury dimes. The Mercury dimes will be saved for later discussion.

Picking up our first Roosevelt dime, we notice that it shows signs of considerable wear. The letters are worn but are still plainly readable, and all other features of the coin show wear but still remain clear. How do we class this particular coin.

Since there are several different grading conditions, let's take time right now to study them. Grades include uncirculated coins, extra fine coins, very fine coins, fine coins, very good coins, good coins and fair coins. Coins that are mutilated are not collectors items unless of a very rare date, and are used only as fillers until a better coin can be found.

An uncirculated coin is one that has never been placed in circulation. These can usually be purchased from your local bank shortly after issue by the mint each year.

To class a coin as extra fine it would have to still retain some of its mint lustre and show very little wear.

Very fine coins are coins that show signs of wear on the high spots but still have enough mint lustre to be noticeable.

Fine coins have no mint lustre and shows signs of circulation but all letters and designing are still near perfect.

To be very good, a coin must have a nice clear date with all features clear and lettering still plainly visible, and have complete rim.

If the coin shows much wear, but design and lettering is still plain, it can be classified as good.

Anything less than the above could be graded no better than fair and would be saved only as a filler.

With this information at hand it will appear obvious that the Roosevelt dime we hold will grade no better than good, but it is a collectable coin and one worth saving.

Let's assume this particular dime bears mint mark "D" and is dated "1956." We now look for the indentation on the coin folder corresponding with this date and mint mark, and simply place our first coin in this space.

From this point on, little difficulty should be experienced in completing the Roosevelt dime series. If, along the way, we should find a few coins of this series that appear to be odd in any way, let's put them aside for additional study later on.

Next Week: The popular Lincoln cent series.

Large Crowd Attends Show

More than 900 visitors registered for the fifth annual Tri-City Coin Carnival held recently at Stockton, Calif., co-sponsored by the Delta Coin Club of Stockton and the Sacramento Valley Coin Club of Sacramento, according to a report from general chairman Gordon D. Rammer of the Delta club.

"The attendance was amazing to us all as we had hoped for 600 to 650. We believe it was the highest single day attendance of any local show in this area", Rammer said.

Exhibits were reported as outstanding with competition so close an additional judge had to be brought in to break a tie. Best of show went to John Lopes of Sacramento for a display of "U.S. History through coins" mounted in a large plastic map of the U.S.

Also exhibited was a 1936 Canadian "dot" cent, which aroused considerable interest, according to Rammer.

The bourse was occupied by 32 dealers from California and Nevada, and the auction was reported to have had quite active bidding. Five special awards, each of a different denomination of gold coins, were made.

In addition to the exhibits, a bourse is slated, and special awards will be made to visitors during the day. Admission will be free and the general public has been invited. Lunch will be available in the building, provided by the St. Marys Band Mothers. Show officials include;

Ray Eblen and Mike Marker, co-chairmen; Emil Zit and Marker, bourse; Dick Drexler and Floyd Clark, exhibits; Security, Walt Menges, Don Kuhn and Clarence Briggs.

New England Convention Listed As Successful

Another successful New England Numismatic Association Convention has been completed at Springfield, Mass., with a record of 675 registrations, it has been reported. Host for the convention was the Springfield Coin Club, organized in 1912.

In the Educational Division which was set up for both Senior and Junior exhibitors, there were 25 entries, covering such exhibits as ancient, so-called dollars, colonial, over-run countries of Europe, odd and curious, paper money plus many more.

Grand awards for best in show went to the following: James Clapp Jr. of Boston, ancient, first; Howard E. Davis Sr., East Hartford, Conn., colonial, second; and Mrs. Francis D'Esopo, West Hartford, Conn., over-run countries, third.

Speaker at the banquet was Harry Lessin of Norwalk, Conn., who gave a rundown of the so-called dollars, and presented slide views of these coins.

The business meeting was well attended, during which plans were made for the 1962 convention to be held at Northampton, Mass., in the heart of "Colonial Berkshires." The Northampton Coin Club will be host for this convention and have chosen the following officials to serve:

Fritz Tidlone of Amherst, Mass., president; Edward Merski of Greenfield, Mass., vice president; Francis Klaes of Northampton, treasurer, and Howard E. Davis of East Hartford, Conn., executive secretary. John Skribiski of Amherst, Mass., has been named convention chairman. Tentative date for the affair has been set as October 19, 20, and 21, at the Hotel Northampton.

Ohio Group Plans Huge Exhibit

If plans materialize, the November 19 Coin Show of the Tri-County Coin Club, St. Marys, Ohio, will have one of the largest exhibit sections of any show sponsored by a single club.

The affair is slated for the United Rubber Workers Hall, South Street in St. Marys, to be held all day, opening at 10 a.m.

Over the last several meetings and in the "Cent-N-All", club monthly bulletin, efforts have concentrated on inducing every member to have a display of some part of his collection. Current membership totals more than 90, which would provide a larger than average group of exhibits if only half of the members participated, according to exhibit chairman Floyd H. Clark.

That the value of a display is not important has been stressed, with the statement that an exhibit worth $20 could easily win an award for neatness, originality of display, and educational value over one worth 10 or 20 times that amount if care is taken in preparation of the exhibit.

The new shop is named The Graf Stamp and Hobby Shop, but the owner reports that "The coin

Mignery At Missouri Session

Al Mignery, well known in the Kansas City, Kan., area for his association with stamps as well as coins, spoke recently at a meeting of the Heart of America Numismatic Association in Kansas City.

Mignery talked about a recent experience as a consultant on coins at one of the banks in Kansas City. Kansas City papers advertised that this bank would sponsor an information center to answer questions on old coins on a certain day.

The speaker reported that the day was a huge success. So many people brought coins, he had to call on other numismatists present to help answer questions.

ANNOUNCING AN IMPORTANT BOOK ON THE TWO MOST IMPORTANT COINS TODAY FOR ALL COLLECTORS and INVESTORS

REVEALED!

The prices of the Buffalo Nickels and the Indianheads year by year. Covering all Buffalos (1913 through 1938) and all Indianheads (1859 through 1909). Also all early Lincolns (1909 through 1935). A fascinating year to year history of amazing price changes!

A BOOK THAT FINALLY REVEALS THE RECORDS SO NECESSARY TO DEVINING THE MYSTERIES OF THE PRICE HABITS OF THE TWO HOTTEST COINS TODAY AND WHAT THEY WILL BE WORTH IN THE YEARS AHEAD!

For the first time you will be able to tell which has had the greatest rise in value. Which will have the most significant rise in the next 2, 3, 4 or 8 years. Which will be the least profitable of coins for investment.

You'll learn of the many price surprises in the past and of the many to come in the future! See what the yearly price change percentages have been and what they will be in the years ahead up until 1970. An accurate and scientific scale of future values based on what each coin has done in the past.

COVERS BOTH UNCIRCULATED AND CIRCULATED COINS

Up until now the difficulty in prognosticating coin prices has been a lack of knowledge and availability of the necessary knowledge. Now this record of past performances over the years is spread out before you in this brand new book!

See how the prices changed over the years, the price change percentages, mint totals, projected prices from 1962 to 1970 and the comments for the future . . . on each and every circulated and uncirculated Indianhead, early Lincoln and Buffalo nickel.

These price patterns, percentages, length of cycles and frequency of changes have been concealed for 26 years! Now you'll know when to expect these upsurges and downsurges. Collector or investor, your growing collection represents a sizeable investment. You should know how long it will be before these coins will be worth a certain set figure.

"The Profit March of the Buffalos and Indians from 1935 to 1970" will reveal what coins have made fortunes and what coins will continue to make fortunes in the years ahead and thereby offer the best security to the collector-investor.

There have been incredible price leaps and phenomenal growth spurts in the past and there will be similar trends ahead. You should know what these trends will be in the Sixties. All coin collectors should seriously review the past price history of these two particular "blue-chip" coins (and the early Lincolns too) Don't guess any longer because of a lack of investment knowledge.

You received "The Profit March Of Your Coins From 1935 To 1968" (which covered the late date uncirculated coins only) very well indeed. Now going into its fourth printing. Now we present a much needed partner book "The Profit March Of The Buffalos & Indians From 1935 to 1970" (which covers the older date circulated and uncirculated coins).

A TREMENDOUS RESEARCH EFFORT AND A MOST UNIQUE BOOK! Only $1.98 postpaid

Giere Named Club Leader

Arthur F. Giere, Galesville, Wis., has been elected new president of the Winona, Minn., Coin Club, according to a recent report from the club.

Other new officers include Louis Gieson, Fountain City, Wis., vice president; Richard Bott, La Crosse, Wis., secretary; and Mrs. Louise Shekanoff, Winona, treasurer.

It was also decided to have a potluck dinner at the next meeting which is scheduled for the fourth Tuesday of November. The Rochester Coin Club, Rochester, Minn., will be guests at the supper.

Members of the Rochester club were present at this meeting and exhibited some beautiful coins. President Giere gave a talk on the silver coin bearing the image of Persephone and minted about 400 B.C.

Florida Club Hears Speaker

Dr. John Thompson, member of the Jacksonville, Fla., Coin Club and specialist in Germanic coins, was main speaker at the recent annual banquet of the Ancient City Coin Club of St. Augustine, Fla., held at Rusty's Restaurant. "Modern German Numismatics" was Dr. Thompson's topic. He illustrated his talk with part of his collection, and displayed many of his older pieces.

Also on display was an exhibit by Hubert Carcaba of Civil War tokens and store cards, including more than 300 varieties and a Betrich and Guttag Catalogue. Adorning the speaker's table was a flower arrangement featuring Money Tree blooms, made by Mrs. Carcaba. The dinner was Smorgasbord style. Carcaba acted as master of ceremonies for the program that followed.

Club Members Exhibit Coins

Ed Coates and Tommy Donohue, both members of the Panhandle Coin Club, Chaldron, Neb., displayed portions of their collections at a recent meeting of the Panhandle group.

Coates displayed a "Frosted Head" proof set, and Donohue exhibited his collection of Lincoln cents, small Canadian cents and other miscellaneous coins.

A discussion about the club's newsletter, Heads Up, indicated that all members wanted it to continue, and a new feature, Trading Post, will be added at no charge to members.

The members also decided to conduct a coin auction every three months, starting in January. Don Briggs was appointed chairman of the first auction, according to a report from Ted Kadlecik Jr., club reporter.

Doreen Smith Heads Group

The new president of the Alpena, Mich., 59'ers Coin Club, elected at a recent meeting of the club to serve during 1962, is Doreen Smith of Alpena, according to a report from Harold Schultz, newly elected secretary.

Other new officers are Harry Lazarowitz, vice president; Cass B. Shalla, treasurer; and Dolores Charboneau, social secretary.

The club meets on the second and fourth Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Alpena Fire Hall on State street. Auction and trading are conducted on the first Thursday, and the regular meeting is held on the fourth Thursday.

In other action, the club made plans to sponsor a coin exhibit at an Alpena business establishment, with each member participating by bringing at least one coin for display.

Special Editions Aid To Students

No doubt you are aware of the many "special editions" that COIN WORLD has run in the past. The two that we hear referred to the most are the Civil War Centennial Edition of March 23rd, 1961, and our more recent Medals Edition of September 29th.

Many students are finding these special editions a great aid as outside reading material.

The following letter received from Gary K. Olsen, Stanford, California, is typical of many we have received.

"I would like to reserve a copy of your International Edition of November 17th, as my graduate work is in Foreign Commerce and my primary interest in coins is with monies of the world."

Editor's Note: Maybe you, too, can utilize Coin World in your school program.

C.W. Offers Samples To New Shops

Are you planning on opening a new Coin Shop in the near future? If you are or if you have recently enlarged your present shop, COIN WORLD would like to help you celebrate the occasion.

We welcome the opportunity to tell our readers about your new store and will send you sample copies of our publication to pass out at your opening. Just let us have the facts and we will do the rest.

All over the country new shops are being opened and interest in Numismatics continues to increase.

Beck's Coin Shop in Dallas, Texas, is an example of what we mean and the following letter received from George Beck speaks for itself.

"I wish to thank you for the nice write up you gave me in the October 20 issue regarding the opening of my coin shop. Also thanks for the sample copies of that issue, I believe that I put them where you might get a subscription or two, I hope.

"I believe that you have the best coin publication yet, and when I am in need of any form of advertising you can be assured of my business."

Thanks Again,
George E. Beck

Fair To Very Fine Foreign Date Collectors Need Minor Coinage Book

By James G. Johnson

This being the International Edition, as usual I will try to write about foreign matters. I did beat the gun a bit as several weeks ago I wrote quite a bit about collecting foreign coins. Two major difficulties about foreign series are that there are so few detailed catalogues referring to any country. Yeoman's "Catalogue of Modern World Coins" lists types only, and as the title says, he does not go back very far in time. "Coins of the World" by the late Wayte Raymond had two editions, nineteenth century and twentieth century, which are useful for identifying coins a little earlier than Yeoman covers.

J. Johnson

In the Clearinghouse for this issue, some foreign coins are identified for readers by using Raymond's first book. It is time somebody went back to the eighteenth century, also. There are plenty of those coins around, judging by letters we get.

Germany has many books written about its coinage to way back, mostly in German; England is pretty well done by, there is a start on Mexico, and Adams did a good job on compiling the Gutttag collection of Latin American coins. There are also several books on Chinese coinage, but who can read Chinese? The big stuff like "Crowns" is well covered by Davenport in four or five different books. But for the date collector of minor coinage, there is almost nothing outside of a few dealers' lists.

So most collectors of foreign coins have to be satisfied with type collections. These should make good exhibits, but for me they would be rather unsatisfying. I don't like unfinished business. I am almost tempted to start a collection of foreign coins just to see what I could do with it.

However, I am too tied up with trying to complete all the U. S. series, with a few exceptions, and if I started now on foreigners I think I would be biting off a good deal more than my teeth could stand. But the idea does present an interesting challenge. It is being said that foreign coins will never be cheaper than they are now, which is probably the truth.

By and large, except for the countries that have been well and individually catalogued, like England, minor coins are cheap, even in uncirculated condition. Dealers are advertising them in batches for one or two dollars. And hundreds or even thousands of collectors of American coins do have some foreign coins they are doing something with.

On top of that, foreign coins are "stashed" away in the bureau drawers of thousands of families of former soldiers who saw European service in any of the wars in which the U. S. participated. Those who did not bring back a pocketful of change were the exception. Two or three times a week, somebody will stop me at the Optimist club or on the street and show me some foreign coins, asking what they are worth.

The more I think about it, the more the idea intrigues me. There are three ways I would go about it, I believe.

One of them would be to spend a dollar or two for an unsorted lot of foreign coins. Then I would sort them out by countries, pick out the country for which I had the most coins, lay them out by dates and denominations, and go on from there.

Another similar batch might produce some missing dates. Then check dealers' lists for type coins that would include more missing dates. At this point, some duplicates would have accumulated. These could be traded for some that are lacking, with a little luck.

Coin club trading should be productive. I would make it known that I was interested in trading by countries or by sizes or denomination or any other way. Finally, if I got to the point where I was lacking only a few dates in a series, I might go so far as to advertise for them. Or I might notify the few dealers who go in for minor foreign coins to be on the lookout for my missing dates.

The second method would be to pick the country first, say Italy, or Spain, or Switzerland or any other. Then go after the coins of that country alone, following the aforementioned procedures.

One collector has been running a display ad in Coin World asking for the coins of a particular country. I don't know if he has got any that way, or why he wants them, but it suggests one way of filling the last few holes in a date set. Complete series sets of any country would probably make a hit at a coin show or even a club exhibit. It would certainly be different.

In one of the previous columns in which I discussed foreign coin collecting, I mentioned a new club in California, the Society for International Numismatics, in the Santa Monica area. That group has the opportunity to be immensely helpful in the field of foreign coin collecting. Its secretary is E. Carolyn Nestrick. I am not at liberty to print her address, but I will forward any letters addressed to the society in my care at Coin World.

For those who are interested in the Crown-size coins, there is the new South Bend Crown and Gold Society. Secretary of that group is John M. Paxson. He may be reached at 56292 Chapel Lane, South Bend 19, Ind. (address printed with his authorization).

Here is something for both organizations to work on, I give up. Some time ago, E. B. Morley wrote to me about an 8-reales coin he had, dated 1816, Ferdinand VII, King of Spain, etc. The reverse has the well-known pillars or two towers, at any rate, or something similar, as well as I can tell from the rubbing he sent. The letters "ME" in monogram appear on the margin where the Mint Mark or Assayer's initials are usually placed.

Mr. Morley wanted to know where the coin was struck. I have spent a good many hours trying to find out. That period in Mexico was one of revolution, and while the Mexico City Mint did coin money, it never deviated, so far as I can tell, from the Mo symbol. Spain also coined money at Madrid and Seville, etc., but neither used ME.

I have gone through Pradeau's work on Mexico, Utberg's listings, Raymond's coins of the World, and now I am working on Adam's catalogue of the Gutttag collection. Here I run across the first clue. In a 2-page section on "Dominica", I find a perforated counterstamped 8-reales piece of Ferdinand VII dated 1812, and on the reverse is the ME I have been searching for. The entire center of the coin has been punched out, and the reference is to "Wood 7".

FOLLOWING THIS up, I find in "The Coin Collectors' Almanac" by Coin World columnist Hans M. F. Schulman and Holzer, a reference to "List of counterstamps of the West Indies" based on Howland Wood's findings in the A.J.N. (which I assume to be "American Journal of Numismatics"). Further research discloses such a magazine with the additional subtitle of "And Bulletin of the American Numismatic and Archaeological Society."

It appears we have it in the editor's library, and I looked it up. There are 41 volumes, dating from 1866 to 1906, most of them indexed separately, so far as I can see. Now I have just discovered a separate folder which seems to be an index. I look up Wood, Howland, and find him listed for Volume 46 which we do not seem to have.

It is now 11:30 p.m. and this column was due today. It is still today, but not by much, and I am in no mood to track down Mr. Wood any further. However, right next on the shelf is a large volume entitled "Encyclopedia of Gold and Silver Coins of the World" by A. M. Smith. I have a hunch and open it. The book was published in 1886. I find Spain. Here are some illustrations of coins, not photographs but drawings.

Lo and behold, the drawing of the 8-reales piece of Ferdinand VII shows that same ME. The inscription on Mr. Morley's coin, the Dominican illustration, and Smith's picture all read in this order "ME. 8R. J. P. Will somebody who knows the answers please write and tell me what the ME and J. and P. stand for? I will be only too glad to pass the information on to Mr. Morley.

I think I have illustrated some of the difficulties in identifying foreign coins. I have also run over my space, and lack three minutes of coming to the end of "today", but at least I have devoted my column to some phase of foreign coins "in keeping with the International Issue" as per my instructions.

New Dates Set For Ohio Show

Due to the time of availability and facilities available, the Delaware County Coin and Stamp Club, Delaware, Ohio, announced that its first show, originally scheduled for the O.W.U. Memorial Union Building on December 10 has been changed to December 9 and 10, and will be held at the Banquet Room of the Elks Lodge, according to an announcement by Wendell C. Morningstar, general chairman.

The club met recently and decided to make the change, and to have a two day show rather than the one day event originally planned.

All bourse tables for the show have been sold, Morningstar advises, and reported that this will be the largest and best display of exhibits ever shown in the Delaware area.

Hours for the show are from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9, and on Sunday, Dec. 10, from noon on.

Wooden nickels will be available at the show for 10 cents each, the general chairman said.

Club Plans Cent Talk

Indian head cents was slated to be the general topic for discussion at the Thursday, November 16, meeting of the Beaver Coin Club, Beaver Dam, Wisc., set for the Hotel Rogers at 8 p.m. according to secretary Alvin Carlson.

Every member was requested to bring his collection of Indian cents for exhibit, and duplicates for trading. This system is planned for the next several meetings, with a different topic coin for each session.

The last meeting was the first birthday anniversary of the club, and a record attendance of 54 was reported. Guest speaker Lauren Reddell of Waupun, Wis., told of his 25 year's experience in coin collecting, recalling when he bought an 1856 Flying Eagle cent for $22.

Also at that session, one-year memberships were given to three men going into military service, Carlson said.

Michigan State Society Lists Convention Dates

The Michigan State Numismatic Society's sixth annual Fall Convention, to be held at Detroit, Mich., at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel on Nov. 24, 25 and 26, promises to be one of the largest numismatic events of the midwest, according to a report from George D. Hatie, publicity chairman.

Frequent committee meetings under the leadership of general chairman Earl C. Schill have been characterized by advanced and experienced planning, novel ideas and hard work in general, giving assurance of a smooth functioning convention.

The convention is being hosted by the Detroit Coin Club, who reports that the hotel management guarantees that all confirmed room reservations will be honored. The Michigan State Numismatic Society Convention should be mentioned when applying for room reservations.

A registration fee of $1 has been adopted by the host club, Hatie said. There will be a very large and active bourse in which approximately 100 dealers will participate. It is anticipated that some very choice material will be available and that business will be thriving.

An auction will be conducted by Tom Ryan of Chicago who will offer a vast array of numismatic material, including outstanding rarities as well as items which will be of interest to all collectors. Entertainment will be provided for all ladies who register and will include games, a free luncheon, and a visit to the Money Museum of the National Bank of Detroit.

The banquet will be held in the hotel's beautiful Book Casino Room. The menu will meet with the approval of everyone and an enjoyable program is planned during which the winners of the exhibit awards and other prizes will be announced.

First place trophies and second and third place plaques will be awarded in six classifications and a best-in-show trophy will be given to one of the first place winners. Categories include United States coins, paper money, ancient coins prior to 1500 A.D., foreign coins 1500 A.D. and after, miscellaneous, odd and curious, mint errors, and gold coins.

The exhibit rules and applications should be obtained immediately from Henry R. Burns, 15486 Auburn, Detroit 23, Mich. Requests for information not relating to exhibits should be sent to Earl C. Schill, general chairman, 1434 Farmer street, Detroit 26, Mich.

Ness City Forms Club

Ness City, Kansas, is the home of a new coin club organized recently by area collectors, according to a report from George Anspaugh of that city. Information regarding future meetings may be obtained from him. The group is putting on a membership drive.

Finnish Coins Struck At The Helsinki Mint

Finland's monetary system is markka, with three markkaa One hundred pennia equal one markka, with three markkaa equaling approximately one American cent.

Finnish coins are struck at the mint in Helsinki, Suomen Rahapaja Myntverket.

During much of the country's recent history, Finnish coins carried Russian designs since Russia ruled Finland for a long period until the end of World War I.

Since she became a republic in 1919, Finland has minted coins in a number of metals, including, copper, bronze, iron, aluminum-bronze, silver and gold.

One of Finland's most artistic modern coins is a 1,000 markkaa piece in silver, struck in 1960, commemorating the centennial of the adoption of the modern currency system.

Swiss Shelving Five Franc Coins

Swiss silver five franc pieces should become real collectors items during the next few years since they are being returned to the government mint at Berne in a steady stream for the purpose of being melted down.

Slightly larger than the U.S. silver dollar, they are unpopular with the Swiss because they are too large and heavy to be carried around.

As a result, the Berne mint has stepped up the production of two franc pieces, which have an approximate value of about 46 U.S. cents at the official exchange rate. Eventually, these will be the largest coins in circulation.

The five franc pieces portray William Tell on the obverse and a Swiss shield on the reverse, and are regarded by collectors as among the most artistic of Switzerland's contemporary coins.

1776 Continental Dollar

In 1876 Montroville W. Dickeson, prominent 19th century numismatist and author of "The American Numismatic Manual" produced dies to strike copies of the first dollar sized coin proposed for the United States, the 1776 Continental Dollar. A small number of these pieces were struck to commemorate the 1876 United States Centennial. These copies are now a highly prized collectors item.

They are listed in both of Richard Kenny's works: "So-Called Dollars" (K-13, page 3), and "Struck Copies of Early American Coins" (pages 12, 15). Reference is also made to them in the 15th edition of the Guide Book, (page 35).

Recently the Dickeson dies were found, in perfect condition, and a limited number of restrikes have been made. In order not to confuse the modern issue with the 1876 issue, the current restrike is two-thirds the thickness of the Dickeson 1876 pieces.

Heavy Markka Looms For Finnish People

The Finnish government has under consideration the introduction of a "heavy markka," similar to the French "heavy franc," upon recommendation of the Bank of Finland, according to the Central States Numismatic Society publication, the Centinel.

Early 1963 is the probable date of the change with valuation a hundred times the present markka.

Canadian Heads Group

Harold Don Allen of Toronto has been elected president of the International Banknote Society for the 1962 term, reports Colin C. Narbeth, executive secretary.

Dr. Walter M. Loeb of Mercer Island, Wash., who has been serving as the society's acting president since its formation last May, now heads the international group's Executive Committee.

Alexander J. Sullivan of Baltimore, Md., was elected treasurer. Narbeth, who has been acting executive secretary and editor of the society's Bulletin, was formally elected to the double post.

Wes Bazar becomes postal auctioneer and will be accepting members' items for mail auction at his home address, R. D. 3, Pine Grove, Pa.

Executive committee members include J. D. Ferguson, Rock Island, Quebec; J. N. Lawrence, Johannesburg, South Africa; Harley L. Freeman, Ormond Beach, Fla. Since the society doesn't meet, the election was held by mail.

Secretary Narbeth reports that the International Banknote Society now has 110 members from 17 different countries.

"Our next project," commented Narbeth, "which is being investigated now, is the possibility of printing catalogues of paper money, section by section, so that members can gradually build up a complete catalogue of types of the world."

"We would do this," he added, "like our Bulletin. The pages would be duplicated and then bound with a printed cover."

Paper money collectors in the Western Hemisphere who are interested in joining the I.B.S. may send $3 for their year's membership to Alexander J. Sullivan at 701 Hammonds Lane, Baltimore 25, Md.

Interested collectors in Europe should send the equivalent of $3 to Narbeth at "Mayfield," Kirby Road, Walton-on-Naze, Essex, England.

Morrissey Named Club President

At the annual meeting of the Tyrone, Pa., Coin Club, John Morrissey was elected to the club presidency for 1962, it has been reported by Bruce Carpenter, re-elected secretary.

Other new officers include Harry Rhodes, vice president. John Jones was re-elected treasurer.

The next meeting of the group will be November 27 at 8 p.m. in the American Legion building, the secretary said.

THE RESPONSE...

From collectors who have bought the Saint-Gaudens medal, is simply wonderful! Here are a few expressions from hundreds of letters received...

"Exquisitely beautiful"
"Never saw a medal to compare with it"
"The Rolls-Royce of medals"
"Outstanding medallic work"
"Even better than I expected"

"I like the big serial number, don't have to use a glass"

Orders are pouring in for the Brenner medal, the next in the beautiful COIN MEDALS series, from customers who have bought the Saint-Gaudens. It looks like a 100% advance sale on the Brenner.

We have seen the large obverse model of the Brenner medal, as prepared by Robert Schabel. It is perfect, in fact even better than Brenner's original in that it has higher relief. The reverse of the Brenner medal, on which Mr. Schabel is now working, will be a combined Lincoln-Brenner design. This is appropriate, since it was the Lincoln Cent that made Brenner famous more than anything else. The Brenner medal will probably be the finest medallic tribute ever made to Lincoln. We look for the Brenner medal to be even more beautiful than the Saint-Gaudens.

BUT DON'T FORGET...

We are still in the coin business, and have a large stock of nice coins for collectors, from Colonials, Half Cents to Gold, Paper Money, etc. In fact, due to being in the coin business, you do not need to send me money to buy your Silver Saint-Gaudens medal, just send me any nice duplicate coins you may have that you think are worth $30.00. If your coins are worth more than $30 to me, I will send you the medal and check for the extra.

My approval plan is the best way to build up your coin collection, with coins of good value. Simply send me a list of the coins you need, with a $10.00 or $20.00 Deposit if you collect average value coins, or a $50.00 - $100.00 Deposit if you collect scarcer, Unc., Proof, gold coins. The Deposit will be held to your account, and you can use it when you make final settlement, or I will refund anytime you ask. In the meantime, I send coins on approval, on which you pay $10.00 or more a month on the coins you keep. I send more coins each time you make a payment, even though you make payments every week. I have many customers who have been receiving regular approvals from me over 15 years, and now have valuable collections.

Zurich's Landemuseum Holds Switzerland's National Coins

By Robert Obojski

I visited the Landemuseum in Zurich, Switzerland, on my recent numismatic tour of Europe for Coin World, and was privileged to get a personal guide tour of the coin exhibit from Dr. Dietrich Schwarz, curator of the Swiss national numismatic collection. Over 100,000 coins are contained here, including several thousand that are on open display in various parts of the huge museum.

One of the most recent acquisitions is a hoard of Roman silver coins that was uncovered near Zurich three years ago. The clay jar in which the coins were found is included in this display, and the coins were almost perfectly preserved in that jar for nearly 2,000 years.

Other exhibits include coins of ancient Helvetia, Switzerland, as it was known during the time of the Roman Empire, and medieval Swiss numismatic pieces.

A large set of ancient Celtic gold coins also highlights another important display case.

The collection of medals is also outstanding. Notable here are the gold medals of Johann Carl Hedlinger (1691-1771), who designed and executed portrait medals of Queen Anna of Russia. The Medals are about three inches in diameter and are masterpieces of medallion art.

"Our collection of Swiss coins is the best in the world," said Dr. Schwarz, "but our holdings of Greek, Roman and Byzantine coins are limited. Fine collections in that area, however, can be found in the Historical Museum at Geneva."

Since about 30 separate mints operated in Switzerland at one time or another, coins of this country are abundant in both number and variety.

Before the confederation of Switzerland in the middle of the 19th century, each large city had its own mint. However, coins have been struck only at Berne, the capital, since 1850.

"We are continually making new additions to our collection," commented Dr. Schwarz, and presently we are planning to expand our public exhibit area.

Merry Monarch Ruled Hawaii

Hawaii's King Kalakaua Pictured On Silver Coins

By Lew Raymond

After the death of the last of the Kamehameha line of Kings, an election was held to determine which of the Alii, or the chiefs, would become the new rulers of the Kingdom of Hawaii. The chief contenders for the throne were David Kalakaua and his sister Lydia Liliuokalani.

Lydia Liliuokalani was an ardent monarchist and tended to favor the British in all international treaties. Her brother, David Kalakaua, was more liberal and favorable toward the United States government. Most of the sugar planters looked to the United States for financial assistance and as a market for their sugar.

During the Civil War, the northern states, due to the curtailment of sugar from Louisiana and Cuba, had purchased large quantities of sugar in Hawaii. Following the settlement of the Civil War, tariff barriers were again raised against Hawaiian sugar. The sugar planters hoped to recapture this market. Hence they threw their influence and money in support of David Kalakaua for the new King, as they felt that he would be most acceptable to the United States and would be useful in regaining their lost sugar markets.

In 1874 immediately after David Kalakaua was elected King of Hawaii, he was sent to the U.S. to try a secure a reduction in the sugar tariff. He made an offer to President Ulysses S. Grant and Congress deeding them the area at Pearl Harbor for a Naval Base in return for a reduction in the sugar tariff.

At the time Kalakaua became King of Hawaii, the Kingdom had no coinage of their own except the copper cent of 1847 bearing the head of King Kamehameha III. The laws 1845 and 1846 had provided for the issuance of this coinage along with the Dollar, 1/2 dollar, 1/4 dollar and 1/8 dollar to be valued at 12 1/2 cents. Silver of the United States was the most common coinage in circulation at that time, supplemented by British Shillings, French 5 Franc pieces, Italian 5 Lire pieces and Spanish, Mexican and Peruvian half dollars.

Upon his successful negotiation of the tariff reduction in the U.S. and his return to Hawaii, King Kalakaua was encouraged to make a trip around the world. The King was entertained by most of the ruling monarchs of Europe and upon his return to his kingdom, he set up a court embellished with red plush and gold which would have done credit to any musical show. The king had seen how other foreign monarchs lived and he was determined to live in a similar style. He loved good food and horse racing and poker playing.

One of his principal partners at poker was Claus Spreckels, a leading sugar planter and capitalist, who it is said knew when it was most profitable to lose to the king. At one time it was said Spreckels held four Aces and bet heavily against the king. The King, who held four kings, bet more than his limited budget would allow and when the show down came insisted that five kings would beat four aces. Spreckels asked him how he got five kings and Kalakaua replied there were four kings on the table and that he was the fifth.

Being the good business man that he was, Spreckels allowed the king to win the pot as he was really playing for bigger stakes, which included the government's favor and influence.

After King Kalakaua's trip around the world, he was convinced that any real ruling monarch should have coinage issued with his picture upon it. Walter Murray Gibson, Kalakaua's most influential minister, promoted the idea of Hawaii having a coinage of her own with the King's picture upon it.

When the King looked around for an agent for the government to issue coinage, who was more logical than his poker partner Claus Spreckels. He authorized Spreckels to have minted at the San Francisco mint one million dollars worth of Hawaii silver in four denominations, corresponding to similar U.S. coins as authorized by the coinage laws of 1845 and 1846.

In 1883 Claus Spreckels, banker, sugar planter and poker partner of the King, arranged to have four silver coins prepared by Charles Barber, engraver at the Philadelphia mint, and struck at the San Francisco mint, in the total amount of a million dollars. For this service Spreckels was reputed to have received 14 per cent of $140,000.

The merchants and plantation owners had much to say about the relative value of these coins as compared with the comparable U.S. coins. Between December 12, 1883, and March 11, 1885, the Chamber of Commerce held 30 meetings on the subject of the coinage issue. They threatened to devalue the Kalakaua coins by 20 per cent and even instituted a lawsuit to prevent their issuance. The Chamber of Commerce was behind this law suit to prevent their issuance. The Chamber of Commerce was behind this law suit as they feared the addition of more silver coinage would devalue Hawaiian credit and increase the cost of paying foreign debts and therefore raise living costs throughout the islands. The law suit was lost on a technicality, but it cast an odor of suspicion over the whole Spreckels-Kalakaua silver operation.

On November 17, 1883, the first coinage of silver half dollars was begun at the San Francisco mint. The first shipment of silver coinage in the amount of $130,000 arrived in Hawaii on December 9, 1883. It arrived in the nick of time for, as one newspaper said, "The Treasury has been almost as bare as Mother Hubbard's well known cupboard". The editor said the Kingdom was almost bankrupt. The first of the Merry Monarch's money was issued January 14, 1884, the same day that the bank of Spreckels & Co. opened for business. Both the Spreckels' bank and Treasury made the coinage available and by June 9, 1884, the entire million dollars in Hawaiian silver had been received in the Kingdom.

In the same year, the Chamber of Commerce was very influential in the passage of a bill providing that the government call in all foreign coin except the U.S. silver and redeem it with the new coinage. In the same law they repealed the right of the Kingdom to mint any more Kalakaua coinage.

By this law the government reduced the total amount of silver in the Kingdom by $524,855 and curtailed the right of the King to issue any more silver coinage. This legislation also gave preferential treatment to the U.S. coinage, thereby hoping to carry favor with the U.S. government in keeping the sugar tariff reduction. However, two years later the Chamber of Commerce supported legislation which eliminated U.S. silver coinage as legal tender in Hawaii. Silver coinage was thus limited to the Kalakaua coinage of 1883 and 1884.

In 1891 the Merry Monarch David Kalakaua died in San Francisco shortly after designating Lydia Liliuokalani as heir to the throne of the kingdom. This was a blow to the sugar planters and merchants as the new Queen believed in an absolute monarchy. By 1893 the Queen was forced to resign and provisional government was set up by Sanford B.

Monies of the Merry Monarch.

Dole. Throughout the Queen's reign and during the time of the provisional government, the Kalakaua silver was the official coinage.

In 1898 the Republic of Hawaii was officially annexed to the U.S. However, Congress made no provision to legalize Kalakaua silver or replace it with U.S. coinage. The banks and business places continued to accept it at face value, at par with U.S. gold. The Post Office accepted it in large amounts and sent it to government depositories where it piled up and was thus removed from circulation.

In 1902 the Chamber of Commerce recommended the redemption of all Kalakaua silver and on January 14, 1903, President Theodore Roosevelt approved an Act of Congress which provided for redeeming all of the Hawaiian silver at par with U.S. silver and reminting it into U.S. coinage.

Wyard Troja Wins Award

Wyard Troja of Ft. Madison, Iowa, won the sweepstakes award for the second straight year at the annual cooperative banquet and coin show held recently by the Ft. Madison, Burlington and Keokuk coin clubs in Ft. Madison.

The joint affair of the three clubs has now been given a name and is called the "Tri-Sippi Coin Group Show". Held alternately among the three clubs, it was at Burlington last year and will be at Keokuk in 1962.

Theme of this year's meeting was "Civil War Centennial", and collector Ted N. Weissbach, English instructor at the State University of Iowa, was the main banquet speaker. His topic was "A Numismatic History of the Civil War".

Gilbert Worley, also of Ft. Madison, won the special award for excellence of exhibit. Otherwise, the top two entrants in each of four classes received plaques for first and a ribbon for second. Winners included:

Gold coins, Philip Budd, Ft. Madison, first; Mrs. Arlene Lampe, West Point, second; silver coins, Budd, first, and Helen Wallace, Keokuk, second; bronze or copper, Mrs. Lampe, first, and Mrs. Clara Beine, Burlington, second; paper money, Claude Bechtel, Burlington, (one award only).

"GOD BLESS AMERICA"

1812 - SESQUICENTENNIAL - 1962

The new "Uncle Sam" commemorative medal is designed in the spirit of "something for our country." The time has come to talk turkey. Mr. K claims that history is on their side. To which we reply, "Man proposes - God disposes." America is the land of life, liberty and... also the pursuit of numismatics. Let's keep it that way! We prefer Freedom!

Established in Troy, New York, 1812, America's "Uncle Sam" symbol originated with "Uncle Sam" Wilson, a patriotic merchant who served as an inspector and provisioner, under contract with the Army of young America (which was engaged in the War of 1812). The documented story of Troy's Samuel Wilson is officially recognized, and plans are being made to observe the coming 150th anniversary year.

Place your order now for this superb medal. Made by the Metal Arts Co., Inc., it is 1 1/2" diameter, and is truly a gem.

Norway System Gold-Based

The present Norwegian monetary system came in to force in 1875, when the monetary legislation provided that the national coinage system was to be based on gold, with the krone, divided into 100 ore, as the monetary unit. The legal value of the krone corresponded to a weight of 25/62, or 0.40323 of a gramme of gold fine; gold coins consisted of 90 parts weight gold fine, and 10 parts weight copper.

By becoming an active member of the Scandinavian Monetary Union, Norway secured unrestricted coinage exchange with Sweden and Denmark. The national banks of these countries also practiced free interchange of bills and mutual right and liability to receive notes at full value.

World War I brought about de facto suspensions of important provisions in the monetary system, in particular the suspension of the convertibility of the bank notes into gold. But on April 1, 1928, Bank of Norway was again required to exchange her notes at their legal gold parity. On September 27, 1931, however, the export of gold was prohibited and the liability of Bank of Norway to redeem notes with gold was again suspended, a proviso still in force.

After World War II Norway has become a member of the International Monetary Fund (deposit 50 million Dollars) and of The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (share capital 50 million Dollars). The value of the Norwegian krone was reported to the Fund as being that in force on October 28, 1945. The value was fixed at 20 kr. to the Pound Sterling and 4.97 kr. to the Dollar, or 0.179067 gr. fine gold.

Although close co-operation in many spheres exists between the note issuing banks of the Scandinavian countries, the Monetary Union has not yet been re-established. In 1949 there was a shortage of dollars in the trade balances of the European countries and Norway had to go to a devaluation of her currency in company with Britain, Sweden, Denmark and other countries. After the devaluation, the gold value of the krone is 0.124414 gr. gold fine and the par rates of the most important currencies are now (1954) 1 Dollar, Kr. 7.1429; 1 Pound Sterling, Kr. 20.00; 100 Swedish kronor, Kr. 138.07; 100 Danish kroner, Kr. 103.43.

Bank notes are issued for the following denominations: five, 10, 50, 100, 500 and 1000 kroner. One and two kroner notes, issued during the war, are sometimes found. They are rare, but still valid.

Coin collectors may obtain single sets of the following coins in new and uncirculated condition one krone nickel, 50 ore nickel, 25 ore nickel, 10 ore nickel, five ore bronze, two ore bronze, and one ore bronze. The price of the sets, including postage, is 75 cents for one set, $1.25 for two sets, and $1.75 for three sets in U. S. money. Remittance may be effected by check or money order.

Coin dealers interested in obtaining larger quantities of the coins may, within reasonable limits, purchase coins at discount rates. All orders should be sent to Norges Bank (Bank of Norway), Oslo, Norway.

Special proof sets and commemorative type coins are not offered, nor is gold and silver coins and coins of previous years.

Funk To Head New Coin Club

Choosing Seneca Coin Club as its name and Boyd D. P. Funk as its temporary president, the new group being organized in Tiffin, Ohio, has slated its next meeting for Saturday, November 18, to be held at the Meeting room of the Six's Corners Branch of the Commercial National Bank on North Sandusky Street, Tiffin, starting at 7:30 p.m.

More than 30 collectors attended the organizational session in October, presided over by John Ziegler of Fremont, Ohio. In addition to Funk, the club elected Paul Schafer, Tiffin, as secretary-treasurer, both to serve until organization is complete and its constitution accepted by the membership.

All serious collectors in the Tiffin area are invited to attend the club meetings, and to become charter members until the charter is closed. Collectors under 18 will be accepted as junior members, Funk has announced.

Starting with the November 18 session, a regular auction will become a monthly feature.

New York Club Has Cent Night

A "Large Cent Night" was scheduled for the November 14 meeting of the DUSO Coin Club of Newburgh, N. Y., according to an announcement by Gary C. Ferguson, secretary.

This is to be the first in a series of educational programs, and each member will bring his large cents and give a short talk on such coins.

At a recent meeting, the club decided to have fewer auctions and devote more time to trading and learning about various coins. Most members feel that the purpose of the club is to learn about the coins they own, and not to memorize the values of the coins, Ferguson reported.

New set of Israeli coins, based on the "agura" denomination, replacing the old "Pruta" currency. The new coinage entered current use at the end of February, 1960. Left to right, one agura, five agurot, 10 agurot and 25 agurot. One agura equals 10 pruta.

Israel Simplifies Its Money; Coins Portray Nation's Spirit

Modern Israel's first coins were struck in 1948-49, and the coinage since that time has been designed to express two central ideas, according to Leo Kadman, noted Tel Aviv numismatist and author of the book "Israel's Money."

The first, says Kadman, has been to revive the ancient Jewish coins and symbols and to underline, in this way, the living connection between the new State of Israel and the past of the Jewish people.

Second central idea has been to produce modern coins born out of "the spirit of our time," added the Jewish numismatist.

Israel's coins portray the vine-leaf, the grapes, pomegranates,

Changing her form of currency at the end of February 1960, Israel went to the "agura" denomination as a base. This replaces the old "pruta" currency.

One agura equals 10 pruta, and 100 agurot equal one pound. Under the old system 1000 prutas equalled one pound. Thus, the currency of Israel has been simplified by the elimination of one digit by the adoption of this new plan.

The pound continues to have an official exchange rate of 56 cents in America money.

Israel's new coins were modeled after Israel's ancient coins in order to commemorate the revival of the Mint of Israel after an interruption of 1,800 years.

the ears of barley, and the palm tree. These symbolize the land of Israel and its fertility, concluded Kadman, while the amphora represents its industries, the lyre its arts, and the anchor its navy.

All of Israel's coins have been struck at the mint in Tel Aviv since 1955. The country's first issues were also struck at Tel Aviv, but because of the small daily production the mint was forced to suspend operations for six years.

In 1949, the government contracted with the Metal Division of the Imperial Chemical Industries in Great Britain for the production of its coins. Thus, for six years Israel's coins were struck in England.

Turkey Issues Seven New Coins In Four Metals

Turkey issued a new set of coins in 1960-61 that have real beauty because of their clean-cut designs and simplicity.

Denominations range from one kuru to ten lira. Metals are varied and include brass, bronze, acmonital and silver.

Acmonital, a stainless steel, is a comparatively new metal used for coinage and is also utilized by two other countries, Albania and Italy. Acmonital was developed by a group of Italian technicians over a decade ago.

The Turkish mint at Istanbul has manufactured proof and mint sets, but it does not sell them directly to collectors. They must be ordered through dealers.

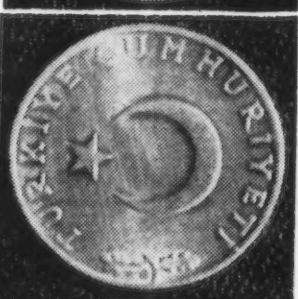

During recent years Turkish coins have gained in popularity with collectors, according to reports. Turkey is also one of the few countries remaining today that issues gold coins with some degree of regularity.

Silver 10 lira

Bronze 10 kuru

Acmonital 1 lira

Bronze 5 kuru

Acmonital 2 1/2 lira

Acmonital 25 kuru

Soy City Club Sponsors Show

The third annual Decatur Coin Show, sponsored by the Soy City Coin Club, Decatur, Ill., was held recently at the Elks Club in that city, with approximately 25 dealers represented at the bourse, according to an announcement by Lynn Smith, general chairman.

Several special awards of gold pieces were awarded during the event, it was reported.

The Romance of MONEY

By Ted Hammer

A clear cut basis to determine the exact condition of a coin is being provided at long last.

Ted R. Hammer attended a few club meetings, he gradually begins to understand classifying coins as to condition (lack of wear or state of preservation). Two methods have recently been advanced to overcome this at no great expense to the collector.

One is in a book, "How to Build a Coin Collection," by Fred Reinfield, well-known numismatic author. His book has excellent photos showing coins in good, fine and uncirculated condition. When a collector can look at a page of Lincoln cents in various states of preservation, he can get a good idea on this subject.

Some dealers are now offering actual photographs of coins showing the different classifications.

Coins range from poor to proof and in between are fair, good, very good, fine, very fine, extremely fine, about uncirculated and uncirculated.

Ordinarily, a collector will not possess a poor, fair or even good coin except in the case of rare coins hard to get in any other condition. They want coins that are at least fine—coins which show little wear and with all design sharp and clear.

An uncirculated coin is just that—a coin never in circulation and not handled except by the edges. It is bright and shiny. The proof is made on the medal press at the Philadelphia Mint and has a mirror like surface. It is made just for collectors.

The poor coin is barely recognizable and may be lacking a complete date. In a fair coin, the date should be legible; a good coin is only slightly better, but all parts should be legible. The very good coin approaches the fine coin which shows little wear. An extremely fine coin actually shows no wear although its mint lustre is missing or all but missing.

Unfortunately, these terms are subject to human frailties—or just say they're subject to human interpretations. It is surprising how often a collector will buy a coin plainly marked very good—then if and when he is ready to sell or swap it, it is fine.

Australian G-Men Needed Money

Holey Dollars Stamped By Convict Craftsman

By T. E. Hanley

When the colony of New South Wales, Australia, was formed in 1788, no system of currency was provided for the early settlers and although the majority of these settlers were "government men" or convicts, this lack of coinage caused considerable inconvenience among those that did require some medium of exchange.

Britain at that time was extremely short of coinage herself so the non-supplying of a currency to her new colony may not have been an oversight. The costly wars against Napoleonic France left her gold reserves dangerously low whilst the English silver mines had exhausted themselves.

The first governor, Captain Arthur Phillip, R.N., was keen, capable and energetic and intended to make the colony self-supporting from the beginning; wages being paid in supplies from the Commissariat and replaced later by the produce of the settlement as it became available. This system soon broke down as the convicts were lazy and those that had previous rural experience, found that farming conditions in New South Wales were vastly different to the farming conditions in England.

The arrival of further settlers and convicts and only a small quantity of supplies caused a currency to circulate in the form of promissory notes, I.O.U.'s, wheat receipts, etc., rated in dollars as well as the usual British currency.

An advertisement in the first issue of the Sydney Gazette in New South Wales Advertiser, dated 5th March, 1803, offering the cargo of a ship for sale states "N.B. To accommodate the inhabitants, Copper Coins will be received in small sums and Wheat Receipts for the current quarter."

Another exchange commodity at this time was rum. The present Sydney Hospital was built with the aid of this spirit and is still known, at times, as the "Rum Hospital." (How easy those days for the economist to solve inflation—just send the population on a drinking "binge.")

Although coins of many countries and denominations were circulating, Portuguese Johannas and half Johannas, Dutch Guilders, Indian Rupees, Mohurs and Pagodas as well as the British specie and the universal Spanish dollar, currency quickly disappeared and Governor King in 1804 suggested to the Home Government that the Spanish Dollar be mutilated to limit their circulation to the area under his control, but doubted even then that they could be retained in his territory.

The idea was not exactly original as other British Possessions had previously punched and stamped the Spanish dollar.

If King decided to follow his suggestion through, there is no record of it and it was left until the governorship of Lachlan Macquarie for the "holey dollar" to be struck and issued.

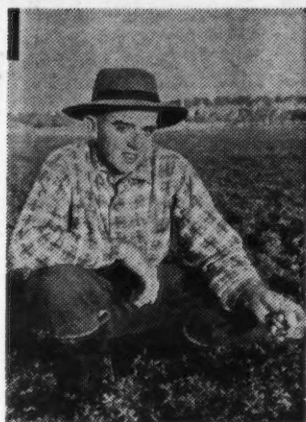

On the 26th November, 1812, the sloop-of-war "Samarang" arrived in Port Jackson with 10,000 pounds worth of Spanish dollars, which the Government had ordered from Madras and on 5th December they were conveyed to Government House where they were examined and counted by a committee consisting of William Broughton, Acting Commissary; H. C. Antill, Major of Brigade; and Thomas Archer, Acting Commissary.

A small screw press, about 12" high and manufactured in the colony was commissioned and a convict, John Henshall, was employed to cut the dies and stamp the dollars.

It is evident that a heat of some sort was applied to the coin before stamping and a number of different dies were used. Although the dump from the center was ground before the new design was applied, the "ring" was not so treated and the inscription around the hole was stamped over the Spanish design.

Nor was the stamping kept uniform as the obverse of the new stamping can be found on either the obverse or reverse of the Spanish coin.

This venture proved a profit spinner to the government. The dollars had a current face value of 5/- but once punched and the centre or dump also utilized as a coin of 15 pence the total value of both coins now being 6/3.

Bernard Rowan of Whittingham, near Singleton, Australia, is shown at the spot where he uncovered a New South Wales holey dollar. The dollar is now in the collection of T. E. Hanley.

Enlarged photo of the reverse of a New South Wales holey found by Bernard Rowan of Whittingham, Australia.

These holey dollars were put into circulation early in 1814 and remained in use until 1822 when Governor Brisbane recalled them and declared them to be no longer legal tender. Some writers seem to think that they may have circulated until 1829 but this is doubtful as they were never very popular with the colonists. No record exists to indicate the number of coins the government received back and melted down but specimens are very scarce today.

The following Spanish coins of Carolus III, Carolus IV and Ferdinand VII and dated 1783, 1786, 1791, 1792, 1793, 1797, 1798, 1799, 1800, 1803, 1804, 1806, 1809 and 1810 are known to have been converted to holey dollars.

Contemporary forgeries are reported in the records of the government and private businesses of the day, and the writer has a copper dump in his collection. It was found in 1927 during the demolition of a building in Sydney. There is no doubt that Henshall forged some copper dumps mainly because the machinery with which he had struck the government coins was left in his possession. He also transpired to be remembered by posterity. In the center between the olive spray and diamond dot is shown but on some coins this dot is replaced by the initial "H".

Osage Club Has Guest

Paul Hedrick, coin and stamp editor of the Tulsa World was guest speaker at a recent dinner meeting of the Osage Coin Club of Tulsa, Okla. Twenty-three members from the Pawhuska, Tulsa and Ponca City clubs were present.

As president of the host club of the recent Oklahoma-Kansas Numismatic convention at the Tulsa Hotel, Hedrick congratulated the Osage Coin Club on winning the special presidential awards on the club contests.

The local club entered a 13-case exhibit prepared by individual members of the club and won first, second and third ribbons on the display.

Hedrick continued his program by speaking to the members of specimens of Lincoln cents. He said that the year 1909 was unusual in the history of the United States coins in that there were six different mint varieties for that year. These included the Indian head type from Philadelphia and San Francisco mints; the Lincoln head type with VDB from each mint; and the name without the initials from both mints.

The business meeting was presided over by O. A. Farrell. Discussion on the recent convention was held and delegates attending noted that coins exhibited were valued at a quarter of a million dollars. Unusual cases were shown by individuals from all over the two participating states.

Delegates from the local club included Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Edmundson, Mrs. Earl Stock, Mrs. Gertrude Jackson, Harry Miller, Mrs. Emory Orton, Mrs. Esther Whistler, Novella Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davenport and Mrs. Fred Mills.

Counterfeit Coins

Ancient counterfeiters mixed silver with large amounts of base metals.

Mackenzie Winner At Recent Show

Fred Mackenzie of Victoria won the senior trophy for best in show, and Ian C. Disney, New Westminster, took the companion junior award, at the recent Coin Show sponsored by the Royal City Coin Club of New Westminster, B.C., Canada.

Mackenzie's exhibits comprised Canadian paper money and were outstanding enough to make a clean sweep of the awards in that category, taking first, second and third, as well as the grand award.

New Westminster collectors swept the Canadian coins class, Les Hill taking first, Mack Kusack, second, and Disney, third. Awards for foreign coins all went elsewhere, C. Dickie, Vancouver, winning first; R. S. Eveleigh, Richmond, second, and Bob Levy, Vancouver, third.

Registered attendance was 175, with 90 at the banquet. Miss Irene Smith, secretary of the Vancouver Numismatic Society, was given a special award of a bronze centennial medal issued by the New Westminster club.

Highlight of the auction was the sale of a 1925 nickel in EF for $47.50, according to show officials. These were Harold Wulff, general chairman; Al Hauer, auction, and Ollie Gallant, exhibits.

At the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, Coleman Hyman exhibited a piece of cut holey dollar. It is approximately one-fifth of the holey dollar and is supposed to have circulated as a 1/- coin. Although a small news item appeared in a Tasmanian newspaper in 1826, mentioning cut holey dollars, there is still no certainty that the cutting was official. This piece is now in the collection of G. C. Heyde of Sydney, Australia.

Stainsfield in his book (1888) also lists a holey dollar and dump with the "King's Head stamped on it." He had not seen a specimen and was quoting from another book, but to date none have been reported in numismatic journals. Could this have been a trial piece struck at the orders of Governor King?

The writer's own specimen (illustrated) was recently unearthed in alucerne paddock at Wittingham, (160 miles N.W. of Sydney) and others have been unearthed in further places including Tasmania, so they had a wide range of circulation.

Thus, the pride of an Australian collection is a Spanish coin minted in Mexico and overstamp in Australia. Maybe one will turn up one day with a chopmark and that coin will practically cover the whole world.

Guest Speaker Shows Slides

"Highlights on Coins" was the topic of a talk by west coast numismatist Karl Brainard at a recent meeting of the Bay Cities Coin Club of Santa Monica, Calif. according to a report from secretary E. Carolyn Nestruck.

Brainard pointed out on various types of U.S. coins the exact points in each case where the first signs of wear occur. He discussed the fact that too many times a coin is described as uncirculated when a close inspection in the right places will show it actually is AU.

"Knowledge of just where to look on a coin for the points of first wear can save a collector a great amount of trouble, and probably money, also", Brainard said. His talk was illustrated with slides.

Next meeting of the Bay Cities club would normally come on Thanksgiving Day, November 23. The club holds its sessions at the Doubles Recreation hall in Santa Monica.

Values Given For Dollars

It's a good idea to get $10 worth of the currency of the first country you're visiting before you go, is the advice given to overseas travelers.

Approximate values of one U. S. dollar in European currencies are

Belgium, 50.00 francs.
Britain, 7 shillings twopence.

Foreign Collections Increase With Study

By Alfred Szege
Jackson Heights, N.Y.

Many U. S. collectors have given thought to adding some foreign coins to their collections. Sometimes they may be discouraged by an unjustified fear of being unable to purchase such coins wisely and well. This hesitancy is needless, as so much aid is available these days. A world of pleasure awaits.

Jaded old time U.S. coin collectors again recapture their first thrills. Every traveling friend's pocket change offers a scintillating wonderland, even the cheapest coin offering adventures in art and history.

Naturally, we would not think it prudent to spend heavily until sufficient experience has been gained. Sales and auction catalogs should be obtained from several dealers. A good start could be made right here in the columns of this paper. Several advertisers offer attractive catalogs, some of which are free, many only moderately priced.

A copy of Yeoman's Modern World Coins is absolutely essential to intelligent collecting of foreign coins. This remarkable book covers nearly all coins issued within approximately the last hundred years.

After a few months of intensive scrutiny, you may feel ready to formulate a plan with either a vague or definite goal. Otherwise, too much time and energy will be defrayed collecting everything in the fantastic selection available.

A general discussion here can only highlight the numerous collecting plans now popular. Perhaps the enumerations below might provide a germ of inspiration.

1. One coin from every single country in the world.

2. One coin of every type ever issued in the world. Gold or crowns may be excluded, according to inclination. The projected period covered may be from a 10 year span down to ancient times. This is usually a successful plan.

3. Coins of Great Britain, Germany and other countries could be collected by date and mint. This is a tedious, long term and immensely difficult task. You will need lots of time, patience and money for this type of collection, especially if you collect coins from several countries simultaneously.

4. Coins of all countries by date and mint. Believe it or not there are some of these brave individuals. We predict, though, they will be somewhat less successful than the British Museum in this endeavor.

British Abbreviate

When speaking of sums of money in Britain, it is usual to omit the words "shillings and pence." Thus, five pounds, four shillings and six pence are spoken of as five pounds, four and six. Seven shillings, four pence are called "seven and fourpence."

5. Collect coins by your birth year and that of your wife or other relatives. An unfortunate we know, who collected coins from everywhere dated 1919, gave up when he discovered German, Austrian and French Notgeld.

6. Collect any coins that please or intrigue you in some manner. You are here, the master of your destiny and independent of fashionable trends.

7. Collect rare coins only, all in uncirculated and proof condition. You will be quite unpopular with some dealers reluctant to sell the few gems they obtain to you exclusively. If you set no definite pattern to your collection, you will probably achieve fair success. You will have to exclude some interesting crude coins never struck in gem condition.

8. Coins of a given denomination such as 1's (1 centavo, 1 groschen, 1 pfennig etc.) We cannot say just why, but this class of collector generally includes other denominations after a year or two.

9. Coins depicting ships, trains, airplanes, animals, birds and a variety of other themes. There are not really too many collectors of these. The foreign coin field is rich in all these subjects and collections should prove relatively inexpensive and fascinating from a display standpoint.

10. Medieval and ancient coins. You will need lots of reference books in this field. To our belief, the best of the elementary series are the Seaby books on Greek and Roman coins. One should also have Jerome M. Eisenberg's A Guide to Roman Imperial Coins. Rich in illustrations, this small handy inexpensive book aids in quick attributions. This field is truly the University of Numismatics, especially the fascinating Greek series.

11. The collecting of medals and tokens is of course allied to this field very closely. Some medals are considered coins and visa-versa.

12. Paper money offers ease of handling and mounting.

13. Odd and Curious always belongs as inclusions of all fine collections.

European type coin cabinets with their thin sliding drawers offers a good way of easily viewing many coins of a forming collection simultaneously. These can be improvised by converting an old chest. Thin flat wooden drawers with felt lined bottoms could slide on additional runners to guide them.

In summary, collecting foreign coins can offer more from the standpoint of spiritual values, interesting research, as well as many hours of just plain fun. After all, isn't that what most of us seek?

Downriver Club Invites Guests

A special invitation was extended recently by the Downriver Coin Club, Wyandotte, Mich., to all persons interested in coin collecting as a hobby to attend Downriver meetings.

The Michigan club has also inaugurated a new system of coin trading which will help members acquire the key coins they need.

Arrangements are being made to offer many different type coins in the auction at fair minimum bids.

Michigan Has New Club

The formation of the Central Michigan Coin Club has been reported, the first meeting of which was held in October near Stanton, Mich., at the Log Hut Restaurant, on State Highway 66. Inquiries regarding future meetings may be made to the Log Hut management.

Coin Fields Wide Open

Writer Advises Collector To Widen Interest

By Earle D. Sherwood
Hurley, N. Y.

Most of us start our Numismatic Collections with U.S. coins, usually small cents. When I started 20 years ago, it was large cents. Now, the beginners either start with Indian heads, or Lincoln cents, with few exceptions. And I might add that some of these Indian heads are becoming quite expensive.

In fact, U. S. coins in general are getting out of reach of the average collector. Therefore, some of us have to look to coins of other countries.

Quite a number of years ago, I met George Bauer of Rochester,

Earle D. Sherwood
Hurley, N. Y.

N. Y. George was a Ford dealer and a prominent numismatist, and owner of a magnificent collection of U. S., and ancient Greek and Roman coins.

I had the pleasure of seeing and admiring this large collection. I spent over two hours looking it over and asking questions. The Roman sesterces in his collection especially caught my eye. Mr. Bauer had some real gems.

It was George Bauer who first interested me in ancient, and particularly in Roman coins. Several years passed before I assembled a small collection of these interesting pieces. I can truthfully say there is no branch of coin collecting that has given me so much enjoyment.

George used to go abroad and browse around various ports in the Mediterranean area and bring back many ancient coins. I bought many of my prize specimens from him.

I also purchased several large lots of unattributed coins of Roman Egypt, mostly tetradrachms. Quite a number of these I sold to Col. James Curtis, who several years ago wrote an authoritative books on tetradrachms of Roman Egypt.

I still have a collection of about 30 different emperors. Many of these I purchased for 25 cents to 50 cents each. Today, they sell for from $3 to $5 each, and certain scarce ones are much more expensive.

To give you an idea of the various specialties you can collect in this field, there are the Roman Republic denarii beginning about 187 B. C. and "family" denarii. The latter have either the moneyer's or a family name, and there are over 164 families represented.

These coins were the work of Greek artisans who had been taken prisoner by the Romans. These are miniature works of art. The denarii today can be purchased from $3.50 up in fair to very fine condition.

For Sale A silver dollar of 1804. Condition good, except on the reverse, where the "E Pluribus Unum" is about worn off from circulation. Date is bold and the coin genuine. Price is $1,000. H. E. Buck, Delaware, Ohio.

For sale Dollars, 1799, fine, only $3 each. Fifty cent pieces in the Twenties and Thirties, fine condition, 80 cents each. Same, uncirculated, 95 cents each. A fine coin book with each order. George H. Burfeind, 1003 G. St. N. W. Washington, D. C.

Herbert E. Morey of Boston, Mass., was offering a few bargains to collectors, including the following: Fifty large copper cents for $1; 10 half cents for $1, all different dates; 25 Civil War tokens for 50 cents; 10 hard time tokens for 50 cents; 10 Roman coins for 75 cents; 25 Confederate bills for $1; and 25 broken bank bills for $1.

T. L. Elder of Pittsburgh, Pa., was asking $4.50 each for brilliant uncirculated proof surface U.S. gold pieces dated 1879 and 1880. The pair was priced at $8.75.

From December 8 to 11, Farzan Zerbe had his collection of moneys of the world on exhibition at the Guarantee Trust Company, Atlantic City, N. J.

The Detroit, Mich., Coin Club, held its December meeting at the residence of A. A. Grinnell. The meeting was in honor of Mr. Hoare, club president, who left the following day for a tour through Europe. During the evening the club presented him with a traveling bag, "hoping he would bring it back full of rare coins."

A heavy storm at Mazatlan, State of Sonora, Mexico, brought a gift to a fisherman who was patrolling the beach. A wave cast at his feet more than 30 silver and gold American coins.

It was believed the coins came from a hidden wreck of an American ship. In short time the entire beach was filled with treasure seekers, armed with shovels and turning up the sand in the hope of uncovering more coins.

Specialization Topic Of Talk

"Specialization in Coin Collecting," was the subject of a talk given by Wayne Wilcox at a recent meeting of the Napa Valley Coin Club, Napa, Calif., held at the Napa Women's Clubhouse on the corner of Franklin and Elm streets.

Club officials announced that membership has reached the 100 mark.
